Parade 2 p. m.

Wilson Lauds Vols for Fire and Flood Help in Communities

Woodstock, July 28 (AP)—The Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association opened its 16th annual convention at the Woodstock School auditorium, Friday night, with members present chiefly concerned with the problem of building up the strength of the organization to meet any emergency, particularly in connection with Civilian Defense.

Closing feature of the convention is a parade today at 2 p. m. by 20 volunteer companies and musical units, marching from the Woodstock Playhouse, north to the Bearville Flats.

Although Kingston had rain at noon, none fell here, and the parade was to go on as scheduled.

List of Officers
During the business session, the following officers were elected for the coming year: George W. Gardner, of the C. A. Lynch Hose Company, Saugerties, president; Percy Bush, of Ulster Hose Company, town of Ulster, first vice president; Leon Keator, second vice president; Fred C. Harder, of Kingston, who has been secretary for the past 10 years, re-elected to the office; Henry DuBois, New Paltz Fire Department, treasurer. Morton Finch, of Kingston, was elected director for a period of five years.

Kenneth Wilson, town of Woodstock supervisor, and grand marshal of the parade Saturday afternoon, gave the address of welcome to the visiting firemen, among whom were Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy of Kingston.

Wilson Lauds Firemen
"We owe a deep debt of gratitude to all volunteer firemen responding to calls for assistance," Wilson said. He cited the instance of the spring floods, when volunteer companies performed other forms of giving aid. "Thinking of our own boys here in Woodstock, we learned here how knowledge could help in the preservation of life and property."

Presiding at the meeting, Reginald Lupo, of Woodstock retiring president of the organization, also extended a welcome to the 20 visiting companies and their representatives. Two last minute additions were added to the roster of attending companies. They were from East Kingston and Accord and will march in the second division of the parade.

Murphy Announces Test
Fire Chief Murphy discussed civilian defense and the role of the county fire departments in the program. He said that in the near future a test of county fire equipment will be held. A number of pieces of equipment will be called from points throughout the county and sent to a designated rendezvous in Ulster county. They will then proceed in convoy to Albany as a part of the test.

Considerable discussion took place concerning ways and means of increasing support of the (Continued on Page 10, Col. 5)

Green Jailed for Refusing Aid in Hunt for Communists

New York, July 28 (AP)—A fourth Civil Rights Congress (CRC) bail fund trustee, Abner Green, was in jail today for refusing to assist the government's hunt for a quartet of fugitive, top-rung Communists.

Jailing of Green on a contempt conviction yesterday was the top development as United States authorities pushed a home-front offensive against domestic Reds.

Another government action was a motion to force William Z. Foster, the ailing titular head of American communism, to supply a new $10,000 bail or go to jail. He currently is free on CRC bail, which has been outlawed by a federal judge.

In San Francisco, bail was fixed at $50,000 each for seven of 12 California Communist leaders arrested on Thursday.

Four others, unable to dig up $75,000 bail each, remained be-

Public Warned On Phony Bills

New York, July 28 (AP)—Federal authorities today asked that the public be on the lookout for the following phony bills:

1. A series of bills bearing the name of a San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank. The face numbers of the tens beginning F11 and the back numbers starting with 17; the face numbers of the twenties beginning J16 and the back numbers starting with 488.

2. Ten dollar bills bearing the name of a New York Federal Reserve Bank, the face number starting K513 and the back number beginning 19.

Harriman Hopeful If Britain Agrees To Re-open Talks

Confident Iranian Oil Crisis Can Be Solved if Negotiations Can Be Re-established

London, July 28 (AP)—W. Averell Harriman flew from Tehran today and told newsmen he thought the Iranian oil crisis could be solved if Britain agrees to Iran's proposals for reopening negotiations.

"I am hopeful that proposals that the Iranian government have made will form the basis of the two governments getting together," he said. "I am personally quite confident that if negotiations can be re-established that a satisfactory solution would be worked out."

Harriman, President Truman's international trouble-shooter, has been in Tehran trying to bring Iran and Britain together to discuss the dispute over nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's properties.

Last Tuesday the Iranian government, through Harriman, offered for the first time to discuss the crisis with the British government. A previous negotiation attempt by directors of the billion-dollar company broke down after one meeting.

"Harriman will talk today with Prime Minister Clement Attlee, Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Gaitskill."

The prime minister also summoned an emergency meeting of all his ministers for this afternoon and ordered the top men and their advisers to stand by for a round of conferences which may continue through the weekend.

"They are asking quite natural questions" about the Iranian offer, Harriman said, but declined to say what the questions were.

"I have come to London," Harriman said, "to discuss the situation."

24 Under Indictment
Altogether, there are 34 American Communists under indictment on charges of conspiring to teach violent overthrow of the U. S. government.

Eleven more, the party's "first-team" hierarchy, have been convicted on the same charge; but only seven surrendered to serve prison terms of three to five years.

The other four—Robert Thompson, Gus Hall, Gilbert Green and (Continued on Page 9, Col. 2)

Luciano Is Linked to 3 Million Per Year Racket

New York, July 28 (AP)—Federal authorities early today arrested eight men and a woman described as members of a $3,000,000 a year French-Italian counterfeiting and dope ring.

Deported vice king Charles "Lucky" Luciano was named as head of the Italian link of the alleged 19-member smuggling combine by Assistant U. S. Attorney Louis I. Kaplan, who added: "This is the largest Italian-French smuggling ring ever to come to the attention of the district attorney's office."

Seven of the men were arraigned early today after seizure of bogus money with a face value of $100,000 delivered to an undercover agent last night in a midtown Manhattan Hotel. Authorities said the bundle of fake 10 and 20 dollar bills, delivered in a cardboard suitcase by two men, was to be exchanged for $22,000 in real currency.

Held in $450,000 Bail
The seven, were held in a total of $450,000 bail by U. S. Commissioner Edward McDonald, who set a hearing for August 10.

At the arraignment, Assistant U. S. Attorney Eugene F. Roth said:

"These men are here on charges involving the importing of narcotics. They represent one of the largest conspiracies in the illegal drug trade ever to come to our notice. This is the first time we have found counterfeiting connected with the drug traffic."

He said the ring was receiving its drugs from merchant seamen and that the illegal importing rate was as high as 20 kilograms—about 44 pounds—a month.

Roth added that the ring has been under investigation for several months.

Seven Held
The seven, taken to the Federal House of Detention, was identified as:

Anthony Joseph Martello, 51, of 36-24 37th street Astoria, Queens, Salvatore Shillitani, 42, of Manhattan, Salvatore Mezzasana, 51, Jean Leget, John Sperandio, Ralph Cianchetti and Carmelo Sanacore.

Martello and Shillitani were held in $100,000 bail each, charged with possession and sale of counterfeit U. S. currency, violation of the federal narcotics laws and conspiracy to violate the federal narcotics laws.

The others, held in $50,000 bail each, were charged with conspiracy and violation of the federal narcotics laws.

Face Arraignment Today
Later, an authoritative source announced the arrest of another man and woman, with both scheduled to be arraigned later today.

Meanwhile, a warrant was issued for a ninth man, Joseph Orsini, already in custody on Ellis Island awaiting deportation on another charge.

The nine other members of the gang, still being sought, were not identified.

Roth said Martello and Shillitani were the two men who appeared at the hotel with the suitcase full of bogus bills.

Kaplan described Sperandio as "an international criminal, and connected with the Mafia (Sicilian Black Hand) organization."

Kaplan estimated the ring's yearly "take" from drugs and fake bills at $3,000,000 a year.

20 Crashes in Rain
New York, July 28 (AP)—A series of thunderstorms last night and early today cooled off the New York metropolitan area but caused a series of auto accidents and flooding of homes and highways.

Contrasting with yesterday's summer high of 92.3 degrees, the heavy downpours and high winds toppled the temperature to 69 degrees at 5 a. m. today. Police reported 20 automobile accidents throughout the night due to the occasionally blinding rainfall and slippery road conditions. However, no fatalities were reported.

Police, Firemen Say Their Pay Bid Meets State Law

Departments Take Issue With Connelly Ruling Petitions Fail to Cite Means of Raising Money; Seek More Signatures in City

Police and firemen joined today in a statement contending that their proposed local law to increase salaries in both departments does comply with state law, despite a contrary opinion by Corporation Counsel James G. Connelly.

A second petition is now being circulated by policemen and firemen to obtain necessary signatures required by law to insure the proposal being placed upon the ballot this November. The plan on the second petition is the same as that contained in the original petition.

In his opinion released yesterday, Corporation Counsel Connelly contended the proposed salary law did not comply with a recent amendment to state law because it did not specify whether the additional cost would be met by real estate tax, sales tax, gross business tax or one or more of the "nuisance taxes."

The police and fire department members' referendum committee, following consultation with their attorney, Francis Martocci, issued a statement today in which they contended that the proposed law "contains a specific plan and complies in every respect with the provisions of the City Home Rule Law."

Any more specific plan would "usurp" the lawful powers of the Common Council, the statement contended.

Up to Aldermen
The plan calls for the Common Council to provide the money, sufficient to meet the additional expenditures proposed by the law, by increasing the amount of money annually required for the fire and police funds," the statement notes.

The plan proposed by the original petition "provides that this money shall be raised by the Common Council from those sources and through the manner by which the Common Council is authorized by law and the Charter of the City of Kingston to raise money for salaries, governmental functions and purposes," the statement declares.

"The Common Council by law has the power and duty of raising and providing the moneys necessary to pay salaries and other city governmental expenditures."

"No individual or group of individuals can usurp that power or attempt to carry out those duties for the Common Council."

"The plan proposed does not in any way divest the Common Council of that power nor does it (Continued on Page 10, Col. 7)

Unconscious Man Found at Bridge

Lack of Identification Leads to Theory He May Have Jumped

A young man, 25 to 30 years old, remains in critical condition at Kingston Hospital this noon while authorities are pressing an investigation to determine his identity and the circumstances surrounding his injury.

William Stanley of 13 East Union street found the man at 1:47 a. m. today unconscious on the roadway under the southern tower of the Rondout Creek bridge.

Stanley notified city police, who summoned a Conners ambulance to take him to the hospital. Since the man was found outside the city limits, the sheriff's office was called in to make the investigation.

Because of the nature of his injuries and because he carried nothing on his person, which could serve as identification, one theory being explored by sheriff's men is that the man jumped (Continued on Page 10, Col. 6)

House Leaders Predict Passage Of Controls Bill on Monday

Washington, July 28 (AP)—Senate approval of a new economic controls bill—permitting some price and rent rollbacks and opening the way for some increases—shifted the controversial measure to the House today.

House leaders plan to call it up for a vote Monday. They predicted passage, which would send it to President Truman just a day before the present law expires at midnight Tuesday.

The Senate passed the bill by voice vote last night shortly after a Senate-House committee had completed work on a compromise version of separate measures approved earlier by the two branches.

The new bill would continue wage, price, rent and other emergency controls through next June—12 months less than Mr. Truman asked. It would relax consumer credit curbs.

Lawmakers generally expected Mr. Truman to sign the bill, with perhaps a protest that it calls for easing controls in too many cases and gives him scarcely any of the additional anti-inflation powers he requested.

The new price control provisions authorize price rollbacks to pre-Korea levels for non-farm commodities, provided that cost increases which occurred before last Thursday are taken into account in fixing ceilings.

Some 'Roll Forwards'
Senators who helped draft the compromise measure said the cost increase formula also will result in some price "roll forwards."

One Office of Price Stabilization observer estimated that the cost increase formula would result in price ceilings about 10 per cent.

The bill also would assure retailers and wholesalers their "customary percentage margins over costs."

A provision like that in the House bill was sharply denounced a week ago by Stabilization Director Eric Johnston.

He and Price Director Michael D'Salle withheld comment on the new bill pending study of it.

The bill also would:

1. Keep intact the 10 per cent beef price rollback already in effect, but ban two additional 4% per cent cutbacks OPS had planned. Other farm commodities could be rolled back to 90 per cent of the May 19 level, or to parity, whichever was higher. The parity yardstick, however, is gen-

Resistance Heavy On Eastern Front

Allies Fail in Attacks for Three Days to Capture Hill

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, July 28 (AP)—Attacking United Nations troops bumped into heavy resistance again today on the eastern Korea front, where they have been trying for three days to capture dominating high ground.

The hill mass the UN allies want is northeast of Yangju.

An Eighth Army communiqué said light enemy contact was reported along the rest of the eastern front and on the central and western fronts.

U. S. B-29s hurled 100 tons of 500-pound bombs at a supply center at Chinnampo, west coast port city for the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

The Superforts from Okinawa also blasted an unidentified bridge in eastern Korea.

None of the bombers encountered ground fire.

Fifth Air Force fighters and light bombers flew 229 sorties (individual flights) through heavy rain and hilltop-level clouds Saturday.

Six Injured In Three-Car Crash On Creek Bridge

Six persons reported injuries as the result of a three-car accident on the Rondout Creek Bridge at 8:20 p. m. Friday. None of the injuries was apparently serious, and no one was reported hospitalized, according to the police report.

The investigating officer, Patrolman Ernest Bartroff, reported the accident was an end-to-end collision in which all three cars were headed north, toward Kingston, when the first two stopped in a line of traffic and a third vehicle struck the second, forcing it into the first.

Passengers in the first car were Isador Rosenzweig, 43; Alfred Badrian, 50; and Louise Badrian, 48, all of New York city, and Hedwig Gold, 44, of Brooklyn. Bartroff reported. All reported head injuries except Rosenzweig, who said his right arm was injured.

In the second vehicle, Margaret Sivertsen of Brooklyn reported receiving a head injury, and Doris Balton, 31, of Palmer, a passenger in the third auto, received cuts and bruises to her knees, the police report stated.

Liken Russian Threats To Those by Hitler

Kniezpolje, Yugoslavia, July 28 (AP)—Premier Marshal Tito says threats by Russian's V. M. Molotov "to destroy us quickly" leave him cold.

Tito told some 100,000 cheering followers in this mountain town yesterday that Yugoslav leaders are not afraid of Russian threats and recalled that similar threats had been made by Adolf Hitler.

Latest Russian attack against Tito was made by Soviet Deputy Premier Molotov in Warsaw last Saturday. Molotov predicted that "the peoples of Yugoslavia will find a way to freedom and liquidation of the Titoist Fascist regime."

Permit Rent Increases
3. Permit rent increases up to 20 per cent over levels of June 1947, in areas now under rent control. Senate Banking Committee members have estimated most of the increases would be from 5 to 7 per cent because higher rents have been authorized for many dwellings since 1947.

4. Authorize rent rollbacks to levels which prevailed just before the Korean war, in newly designated areas.

Officer's Accuracy Not Denied; Marshall Puzzle

Washington, July 28 (AP)—The Defense Department has washed the official label off a briefing officer's virtual accusation that the Communists are framing a double-cross in Korea, but has not denied the officer's accuracy.

And high authorities at the Pentagon said they were unable to explain another major puzzle that developed yesterday—a statement by their chief, Secretary of Defense Marshall, that the United States plans to have 400,000 American troops in Europe in 1952.

That is nearly twice as many as previously indicated by Marshall, who has said six full divisions would be the American contribution to Europe's defense. His figure yesterday included 60,000 airmen.

Secretary Marshall was testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in support of the administration's $8,500,000,000 foreign economic and military aid program.

Frank Report
About the same time yesterday morning, newsmen stepped into the bureau of the army's briefing officer, expecting the usual off-the-record background talk on how things are going in Korea.

Instead, the spokesman announced the conference would be on the record, and began reading from a prepared typewritten sheet.

He let it be known—without identifying the unit—that one good-sized United Nations combat unit had been withdrawn from the battle area and sent back to Japan. This was the first hint of such a move. All previous reports had been that UN forces in Korea were organized at full strength for further combat, if necessary.

The officer went on: "On May 16 the Chinese Communists launched a major offensive . . . by May 23 the Communist effort was broken and the Eighth Army moved immediately (Continued on Page 9, Col. 3)

Malik Says Russia Wants Business-Like Negotiations

Moscow, July 28 (AP)—A group of British Quakers left for home today after hearing Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik tell them Russia is ready for "businesslike" negotiations with the west on world issues and does not want to export its revolution.

The Quakers told western newsmen yesterday that these were among replies made to a seven-point peace program they presented to Malik at a meeting Thursday night. Western observers are waiting with interest to see if the news of the Malik-Quaker talks are published in the Soviet press.

A member of the British group said he was "both encouraged and disappointed" by the interview with Malik. He said he was encouraged because of the time and attention the Soviet government had given to them and disappointed because Malik answered by merely calling attention to past

Seven-Point Program
The Quakers said they showed the seven-point program to British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison in London before giving it to Malik here. They said it contained the following points:

Reds Have More Force and Nerve in Making Demand That 38th Be the Line

Won't Budge

Allies Insist Area Be Along Present Site of Battle

UN Advance Headquarters, Korea, July 28 (AP)—United Nations and Communist cease-fire teams clashed head-on today over the thorny problem of a military buffer zone across the Korean peninsula.

Gen. Nam Il, chief Red envoy, stated the Red position "with more force and nerve than on any previous occasion," an eyewitness said.

But at the end of two hours and 25 minutes, both sides held stubbornly to their earlier positions.

The Reds want the buffer line along the 38th Parallel. The UN allies want it along the present battle lines.

Air force Brig. Gen. William F. Nuckols, who attended today's three sessions, said there was no indication of an area of agreement.

Both sides refused to budge. A heavy rain hammered down on the former Kaesong restaurant as the grim negotiators faced each other across the greentopped conference table.

Military Formality
The atmosphere in the room was described as "cool military formality."

The phrase was not elaborated, but it recalled a description of the first meeting of liaison officers in the same room July 8.

Col. Andrew J. Kinney said the tone of that first meeting was "military courtesy—a cold way of not being exactly hostile."

Nuckols said the positions of the two sides today were "reasonably clearcut, but there is a considerable difference between the positions."

Concerning Nam, Nuckols said, "I wouldn't say he was belligerent, but he certainly was forceful."

The delegates presumably will return to the knotty question in tomorrow's meeting, the 13th scheduled to start 11 a. m. (8 p. m. EST, Saturday).

No Compromise in Sight
There was no hint today that either side was prepared to give ground, or offer a compromise. Such a move may come later if the talks threaten to break down.

Nuckols stressed that the "discussions have been essentially a restatement of points made previously. Little, if any, real progress is being made."

The Reds bowed to UN demands twice, in making Kaesong a neutral city and agreeing to postpone discussion of the withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

The negotiators may decide to drop the buffer zone problem for the time being and pass on to other points of the agenda.

Points on Schedule
If they do, they may find those points just as hard to solve.

Still to be discussed are: (1) concrete arrangements to end the shooting and supervise the truce, (2) the buffer zone problem, (3) the exchange of prisoners, (4) the exchange of the dead, (5) the exchange of the wounded, (6) the exchange of the captured, (7) the exchange of the missing, (8) the exchange of the prisoners of war, (9) the exchange of the prisoners of war, (10) the exchange of the prisoners of war.

Unconscious Man Found at Bridge

Lack of Identification Leads to Theory He May Have Jumped

A young man, 25 to 30 years old, remains in critical condition at Kingston Hospital this noon while authorities are pressing an investigation to determine his identity and the circumstances surrounding his injury.

William Stanley of 13 East Union street found the man at 1:47 a. m. today unconscious on the roadway under the southern tower of the Rondout Creek bridge.

Stanley notified city police, who summoned a Conners ambulance to take him to the hospital. Since the man was found outside the city limits, the sheriff's office was called in to make the investigation.

Because of the nature of his injuries and because he carried nothing on his person which could serve as identification, one theory being explored by sheriff's men is that the man jumped from the bridge.

House Leaders Predict Passage Of Controls Bill on Monday

Washington, July 28 (AP)—Senate approval of a new economic controls bill—permitting some price and rent rollbacks and opening the way for some increases—shifted the controversial measure to the House today.

House leaders plan to call it up for a vote Monday. They predicted passage, which would send it to President Truman just a day before the present law expires at midnight Tuesday.

Officer's Accuracy Not Denied; Marshall Puzzle

Washington, July 28 (AP)—The Defense Department has washed the official label off a briefing officer's virtual accusation that the Communists are framing a double-cross in Korea, but has not denied the officer's accuracy.

And high authorities at the Pentagon said they were unable to explain another major puzzle that developed yesterday—a statement by their chief, Secretary of Defense Marshall, that the United States plans to have 400,000 American troops in Europe in 1952.

That is nearly twice as many as previously indicated by Marshall, who has said six full divisions would be the American contribution to Europe's defense. His figure yesterday included 60,000 airmen.

Secretary Marshall was testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in support of the administration's $8,500,000,000 foreign economic and military aid program.

Frank Report
About the same time yesterday morning, newsmen stepped into the bureau of the army's briefing officer, expecting the usual off-the-record background talk on how things are going in Korea.

Instead, the spokesman announced the conference would be on the record, and began reading from a prepared typewritten sheet.

He let it be known—without identifying the unit—that one good-sized United Nations combat unit had been withdrawn from the battle area and sent back to Japan. This was the first hint of such a move. All previous reports had been that UN forces in Korea were organized at full strength for further combat, if necessary.

Reds Have More Force and Nerve in Making Demand That 38th Be the Line

Won't Budge

UN Advance Headquarters, Korea, July 28 (AP)—United Nations and Communist cease-fire teams clashed head-on today over the thorny problem of a military buffer zone across the Korean peninsula.

Gen. Nam Il, chief Red envoy, stated the Red position "with more force and nerve than on any previous occasion," an eyewitness said.

But at the end of two hours and 25 minutes, both sides held stubbornly to their earlier positions.

The Reds want the buffer line along the 38th Parallel. The UN allies want it along the present battle lines.

Air force Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckolls, who attended today's three sessions, said there was no indication of an area of agreement.

Both sides refused to budge. A heavy rain hammered down on the former Kaesong restaurant as the grim negotiators faced each other across the greentopped conference table.

Jacobson on Canasta

Think Before Throwing Card

By OSWALD JACOBSON
Written for NEA Service
"I have a discarding problem for you to solve," relates a Chicago correspondent, "and hope that I will be able to give you enough information. That isn't easy, because it's one of those situations in which the pack builds up and until all the players have a chance to discard from their hands."

"The pack was born from each side needing only 50 points for the first meld. Everybody throws safe cards, including ten wild cards. You draw from the stock and hold three aces, three kings, three eights and three fours. You must now discard from one of those triplets."

"No ace or four has ever been discarded. The player at your left has discarded two eights, at his last two turns to play; but no other eight has been discarded by anybody. Only one king has been discarded by your partner at his last turn of play."

"Assuming that all the players are experienced Canasta players (they consider themselves pretty good, too), what should you discard at this point?"

A very interesting little problem. The safest discard stands right out. In this situation you should discard one of the kings.

We can begin by eliminating the aces and fours. They have never appeared, and they are by far the

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

The mention of the "Burning of the Steamboat Swallow" the other evening in this column brought response as some people remember the story, although it happened on April 7, 1845, some 106 years ago. According to Henry Whittemore's book on the development of Steamboat Navigation from 1808 to 1908, "The Swallow left Albany on her downward trip at the usual hour. The night was dark and the pilot became confused while going through the western channel near Athens, and ran the boat on a shelf of rocks while going at a high rate of speed; she filled rapidly and was sinking when her rival, the Rochester, came to her assistance and took most of the passengers off, as was supposed at the time."

A passenger in describing the scene, said: "In less than five minutes by the mercy of God, the stern rested on the bottom, the water being above the windows of the after saloon staterooms by darting in the windows. The bow had been forced high and dry upon the rock, and the boat split open amidships, was left rising almost perpendicular upwards, covered with anxious persons clinging to the bulwarks. The steamboat 'Express' came up and took off part of the passengers and in the course of an hour the others were all taken off by the Rochester. The boat is a complete wreck. It was an awful sight when we cast off from the side."

A final summing up of the passenger list gave the following estimates: "The Express took 40, the Rochester 94, and 70 arrived at Albany, leaving 80 to be accounted for. An official investigation showed that the accident was due to the recklessness of the pilot."

This book contains a list of passage boats built and running on the Hudson, between New York and Albany, and New York and Troy from 1807 to 1845. Starting from the Clermont, built in 1807, enlarged and improved, and named changed to North River, a 166-ton job, completed in 1808. Car of Neptune came next, weighing 295 tons, built in 1809. The last steamboat named is the Hendrick Hudson, 1,170 tons, built in 1845.

The following may also interest historians interested in boat history. "Since the employment of steamboats in the United States, it is computed (1908) that 1,300 have been built here. . . . The largest boat in this country is the 'Natchez,' of 860 tons, and about 300 horsepower, designed to run between New York and the Mississippi. . . . The whole number of steamboats ascertained and estimated to be in this country (in 1838) is 800. In England, in 1836, the whole number of steamboats in that country was computed to have been 600. Yet England was known as 'Masters of the Seas.'"

Besides the racing between steamboats on the Hudson which caused many accidents and loss of life, there was also a continuous war of 'cut me faster' in 1850, just about 100 years ago, the Rip Van Winkle was carrying passengers from New York to Albany for 25 cents. Something on the racing of steamboats on the Hudson River in future column.

Physician and Wife

Burned in Explosion

Gloucester, Mass., July 28 (AP)—A prominent Port Washington, N. Y., physician and his wife were burned seriously yesterday in a gasoline explosion and fire aboard their $6,000 cabin cruiser, "Tuna," Dr. Alfred S. Bayles, 63, his wife Lillian, 63, and the craft's skipper, Winthrop A. Davis, Jr., 26, of Gloucester, were taken to Addison-Gilbert Hospital.

Witnesses said the 35-foot cruiser "Tuna" had just been loaded with gasoline at an East Main street pier for an afternoon cruise. Bayles was blown overboard by the blast and his wife and Davis leaped into the water to escape the fast-moving flames.

Witnesses said the explosion came just after the craft's engine was started. Firemen confined the blaze to the "Tuna" but said it was almost a total loss.

The "Tuna" is kept in Gloucester harbor where the Bayles family summers in the Annisquam section of Gloucester.

Training Courses Planned for Fall in Several Areas

Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America, is planning to conduct training courses this fall for all Troop, Pack and Explorer Post leaders.

The courses will meet in several sections of the county one night a week for six weeks. One course for scoutmasters and assistants will be held at New Paltz. Instructors will be Robert Tremper, neighborhood commissioner; William Daum, scoutmaster of Troop 9; Harry Rigby, Jr., council training chairman; and John Levy, district training chairman, all of Kingston.

Another scoutmaster's training course will be held in Catskill, with instructors being Raymond Quackenbush of Saugerties, district training chairman; William Filmyer, Saugerties explorer assistant; Harold Bender, Greenville, scoutmaster, and Charles Weidner, West Shokan, scoutmaster.

A Cub leader's training course will be held in Kingston. John Levy, Kingston district training chairman who had much experience in Cubbing in Perth Amboy, will be in charge. The Explorer Post advisors will be trained on a monthly meeting basis in each district.

Exact times and places will be announced for all courses.

Emphasizes Leadership

Leadership training is one of the duties of the local council, Scout Executive George V. Dennis explained in a talk Thursday noon at the regular meeting of the Kingston Kiwanis Club.

Dennis emphasized that the Boy Scouts of America is a national organization to provide guidance, advice and program aids to the districts, local councils and through them to the troops. The troops themselves are operated solely by licensed institutions, each of which sends a representative to the local council, so that the entire setup is locally governed, he explained.

Camping is the most important part of Scouting's program, Dennis told the Kiwanians. "Take the 'out' out of Scouting and you don't have anything left," he said.

The annual council fund drive, now in its initial gift stages, is seeking to raise $19,000 to extend Scouting to more boys in the area, to train present and new leaders, for improvements in camp and to expand its facilities, Dennis said.

At a meeting Tuesday evening of the council's executive board, Robert C. Tremper, director at Camp Tri-Mount, outlined some of the activities at the camp this season.

Many Badges Earned
By the end of last week, the camp had tallied more than 150 boy-weeks and still had two full weeks left in its season, Tremper said. More than 300 requirements for rank advancement were made in the first two weeks of camp, and many more badges in all phases of out-door Scouting have been earned, he said. The weekly program consists of campfires, hikes, cook-outs, swimming, waterfront instructions, troop and camp-wide games, handicraft, instruction in all Scout-love, axmanship, nature lore, rope work. A waterfront carnival is held each Saturday afternoon.

A tour of the camp was taken

Room in Buff or Yellow Always Seems Warmer

Do you know that people will shiver in a blue painted room during the winter months while they will be perfectly comfortable in a room painted buff or light yellow—even though temperatures in the two rooms are exactly the same?

Protecting Padlocks
Ice and frost can be kept out of padlocks on outbuildings by tacking a strip of rubber or metal over the lock. Padlocks that are frozen can be thawed out by inserting the key and then holding a lighted match to the key.

India Gives Ration Picture

New Delhi (AP)—One-third of India's population is under rationing—55,000,000, in villages and 70,000,000 in cities and towns. Giving this information in Parliament, Food Minister K. M. Munshi said this was a drop of nearly 30,000,000 from the beginning of 1951. The food scarcity in Bihar and Bengal has brought an additional 3,000,000 people under a kind of rationing—distribution through controlled "fair price" shops.

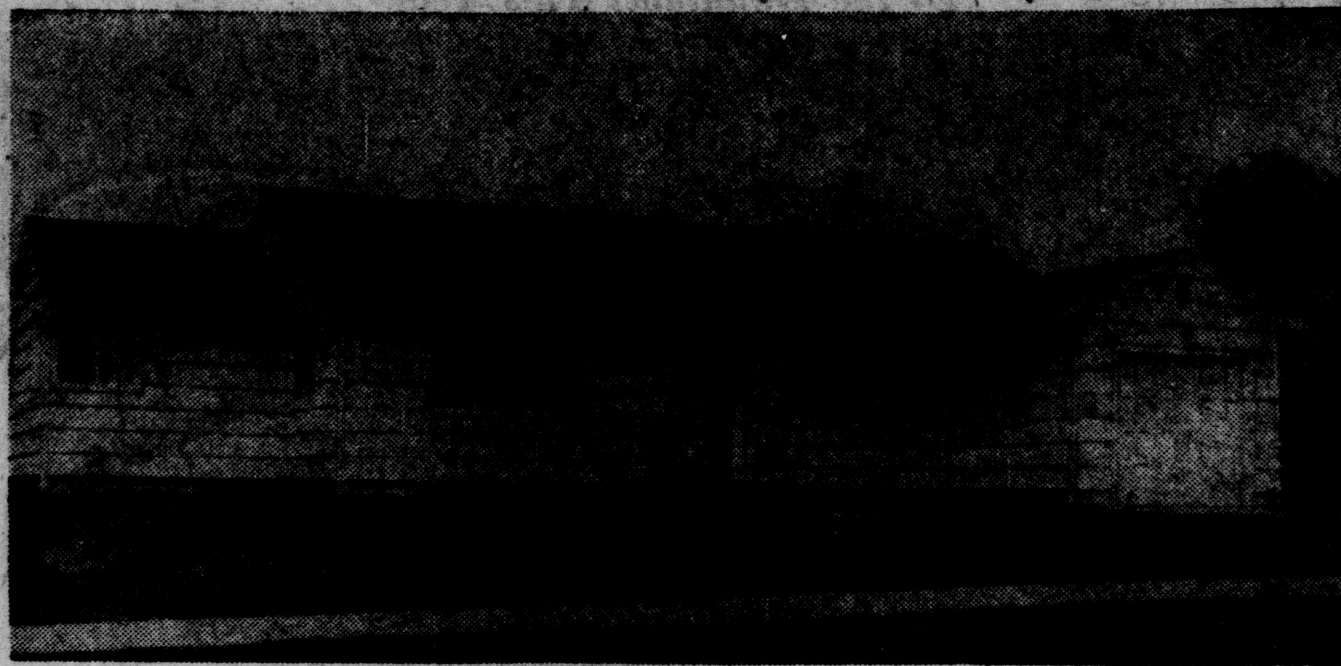

Woodwork Stenciled Before Staining

An unusual but interesting manner of treating woodwork is to apply a stencil design in combination with staining. The stencil design is first applied to the woodwork with varnish, clear lacquer or shellac. Next, the stain is applied and this, of course, does not penetrate the coated stencilling. The surplus stain is then removed with a soft cloth. If the wood is to be finished in natural color, the stencil design is done in Japan or color varnish before the surface is filled or varnished.

Screens Made From Discarded Shutters

Many housewives are having discarded outside shutters hinged together to make attractive screens for inside use. The slatted shutters blend in with the popular Venetian blinds and when painted to match the woodwork of the room are a decided addition, besides their use in shielding from drafts and at the same time allowing air to come through the slats.

THE FAIRPOINT

A Spacious Ranch House Of Inviting Design

Rooms Six
Bedrooms Three Closets Six
Cubage 24,400 ft.
Dimensions 58' x 34'

Because the house alone measures 44'x24', a large lot would be required. With the garage the measurements are 56'x34', so that a 70 foot minimum lot would be required to build the house and garage as illustrated.

If you prefer a full cellar, the cubage will be 24,400 feet. However, if you want to save on basement excavation and construction expenses you can build "The Fairpoint" with a partial basement under the kitchen, living room and dining room. The cubage will then, of course, be less.

The large picture windows in the living room and in the den dress up the exterior of the house as well as provide a pleasing decorative touch for the interior.

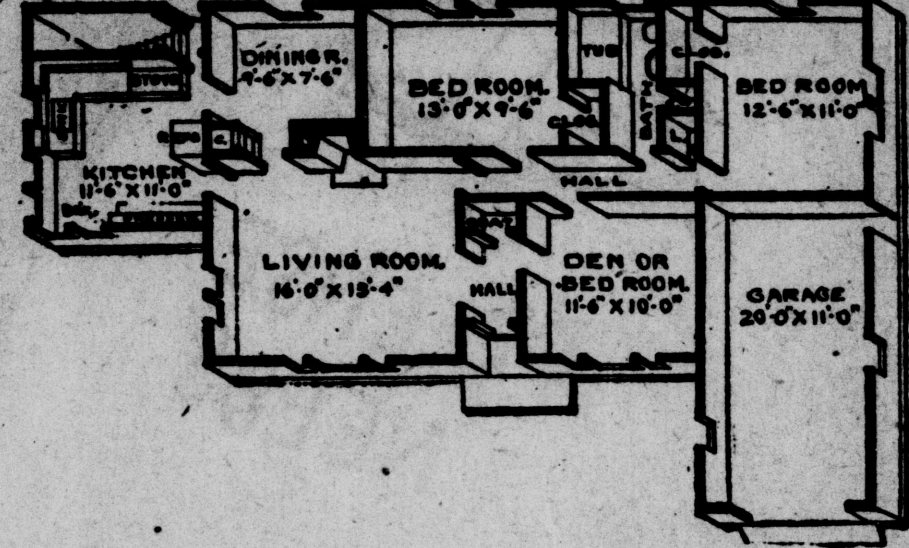

Simple Landscaping
Although a lawn is the only type of planting around the house in the illustration, you can have flowers and shrubs if you like. However, do not plant high shrubs, or flowers that grow very tall, as they will detract from the house; ruin its rambling, low-slung effect.

A tiny porchway provides protection for the front entrance. The single glass panel in the door itself is a simple, but effective decorative touch in perfect harmony with the handsomely simple yet striking architecture of "The Fairpoint."

Measuring 16x13'4", the living room is the largest room in the house; with the right decorative treatment it can easily become the most attractive room, also. Plenty of light comes into the room through the picture window in the front wall, the narrow windows flanking it and the two windows in the left wall. In the back wall, at the corner where the dining room joins one of the bedrooms, is the fireplace.

Well Lighted Kitchen
A doorway in the left wall of the living room connects with the 11'6"x11' kitchen. Four windows dress up the left front corner of the kitchen; make certain there'll be plenty of light and ventilation. By these windows would be the ideal location for that popular breakfast nook.

The working counters with cabinets above and below are arranged in an L along the left and back walls. At the beginning of the line of working counters, directly underneath the third window in the left wall, is the sink. The stove is located at the opposite end of the line of working counters.

Placed as it is against the right wall, between the door leading to the dining room and the one leading to the living room, the refrigerator is but a short distance from the stove.

Stairs to the cellar lead down back of the stove. The door in the back wall opens directly on to the back yard and is a convenient entrance for delivery boys and the youngsters. You'll also find it handy when, for one reason or another, you want to go directly to the back yard from the kitchen.

The one large window in the back wall provides plenty of light for the 9'6"x7'6" dining room. Choose a location for your dining set that will enable you to fully enjoy the light and view from this window.

Central Hallway
The central hallway in the house leads from the living room and connects with the bedrooms and bath. Measuring 13'x9'6", the first bedroom has double windows in the back wall and a large clothes closet in the right wall. Because of its size this room could serve as the master bedroom. However, since it has a long unbroken left wall, you might prefer to use it for the boys' room and install bunk beds. The all modern bath contains both a tub and a shower. There is one window in its back wall and a small closet in the right wall. Opening on the central hallway, just to the right of the bath, is the convenient location of the linen closet.

At the end of the central hallway is the 12'6"x11' bedroom. This room enjoys the benefits of cross ventilation as well as plenty of light through the double windows in the right wall and the single window in the back wall. This room also has a large closet.

Across the central hall at the front of the house is the 11'6"x10' room that you can use as either a den or a bedroom. With its handsome picture window plus the narrower casement windows, the room could serve either purpose with equal convenience.

Well lighted and ventilated by a window in the right wall and another in the left wall the 20'x11' garage also has an entry in the right wall. In the garage you'll also find plenty of storage space for your garden tools, screens, etc.

Have the heating plant installed under the living room in "The Fairpoint" and the laundry underneath the kitchen. With a full cement basement this will leave room for a large recreation room, and a deep freeze area as well as plenty of storage space.

Blueprints Available
Complete plans and specifications for this house and all other "Homes of the Week" designs are available at moderate cost. For plan prices, write to the Home Building Editor, Dept. 24, The Kingston Daily Freeman and enclose a self-addressed, 3c stamped envelope. Allow 7 to 10 days for a reply.

Care of Wrought Iron

Those attractive porch banisters and porch railings, gates, garden furniture and accessories made of wrought iron are likely prey for rust. Take care of them by periodic cleaning and repainting or polishing, says Practical Builder. A woolen cloth dampened in sweet oil combined with considerable elbow grease will clean off most rust spots and grime. Polishing with a dry woolen cloth will give a satiny lustre, and prepared paints are available for added protection against the elements.

Bathtub Crack Repair

The crack sometimes left around the edge of the bathtub when the tub settles away from the plaster can be closed by filling the space with mineral wool, covering this with prepared cement, plastic wood or putty and painting to match the wall.

Tub Location Is Important

The location of the bathtub should be well considered when planning the bathroom. It is never wise to install a tub in front of a window for not only will dirt blow down into the tub from the window, which must necessarily be open at times, but such a location also makes bathing uncomfortable in winter. If there is a shower installed over the tub, the spray damages the window curtains.

A tub recessed between two closets saves space and is a most desirable arrangement. One closet may be used for linen and the other will be found a convenient place for storing cleaning supplies. Many steps are saved by having a supply of extra towels inside the bathroom, and since the bathroom porcelain and tiles need frequent cleaning, it is also convenient to have the necessary materials close at hand.

How to Use Enamel On Unfinished Pieces

When you use enamel for unfinished furniture, first fill in all cracks and nail holes with wood filler or spackling material. A putty knife or an old kitchen knife can be used for this operation.

Let the filter dry, then sand the whole surface with sandpaper on a block. Sand with the grain and dust with a cloth slightly moistened with turpentine. Next apply a coating of shellac or a varnish-type sealer to prevent subsequent coatings from penetrating the pores of the wood evenly.

A coat of enameled undercoater is next, then a final coat of gloss or semi-gloss enamel.

No Insulation Needed

Don't cover aluminum hot air ducts with asbestos paper. Just keep them clean and shiny and they'll do their own insulating.

Longer Life for Rug

When a rug or carpet looks as if it were coming to the end of the trail, coat the back of it with shellac. It will give the rug a new lease on life for a while.

Removing Oil Stains

Oil stains can be removed from woodwork by applying a coat of Fuller's earth over the wood and allowing this to absorb the oil.

Living-Dining Room Is Modern Trend

The modern trend toward combined living-dining rooms is especially adaptable to small homes and can be carried out in a number of ways.

A dining alcove, fitted and furnished like the living room, gives the latter a feeling of much added space and makes it actually a functional part of the living room except at meal times. Furniture in harmony with that of the living room should be used in the alcove. Drapes, on a traverse, can be used on the opening of the alcove if the home owner decides it is desirable to have the rooms disconnected during meal time.

Combining the dining room and living room is an excellent space saver in small homes, as the space needed for the dining room alcove can be used to make the living room much larger. Owners of homes which have the disconnected rooms can combine them by removing the dividing wall.

New Delhi (AP)—One-third of India's population is under rationing—55,000,000, in villages and 70,000,000 in cities and towns. Giving this information in Parliament, Food Minister K. M. The food scarcity in Bihar and Bengal has brought an additional 3,000,000 people under a kind of rationing—distribution through controlled "fair price" shops.

ANGLO-IRANIAN OIL DISPUTE

At some earlier stage, it might have been possible to settle the Anglo-Iranian Oil dispute in a way satisfactory to both sides. But W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's special envoy to Teheran, is learning that kind of settlement is no longer likely.

The Iranians have indeed agreed to resume talks with the British, but only on the understanding there will be no backdown on nationalizing the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. Ill will against Britain runs so deep that Iran is almost prepared to risk economic suicide to oust the company.

The atmosphere is genuinely hysterical. Moderate men are prisoners of the nation's anti-British extremists. Reason has little chance against the emotional tide.

Some American correspondents there feel the British don't realize how grim their prospects are. The time has passed when the Iranians would listen to better money offers for their oil, or anything similar. They don't even want U. S. economic aid if the price is yielding to Britain.

The only question now is this: What can be salvaged, if anything, from a situation governed by Iran's immovable insistence on nationalizing its oil?

The Iranians themselves have abandoned their original hopes that British technicians would stay and work for a national oil company. This means that, barring the unforeseen, all British contact with Iranian production will end.

Where, then, will the Iranians find the men to produce the oil? Given enough time—several years—they undoubtedly can develop their own technicians. But it is difficult to imagine they will be able to maintain high level output in the meantime, unless they should accept help from Russia or its satellites.

The Iranian leaders certainly recognize the risk of letting the bars down to the Russians in any way. But oil is the chief support of the Iranian economy, and in desperation the Iranian government might take Russian aid in preference to suicide.

In the light of this outlook, the British might have some sober second thoughts about denying all technical aid to Iran.

No matter how it is produced, there remains the question of where the oil will be sold. Up to now the West has provided the principal market, with Europe taking most. The Iranians do not believe these countries will boycott their oil. Indeed, they are convinced that even if they wished to do so, they would be compelled ultimately by world supply conditions to buy in anyway.

The West is no longer as gloomy as it originally was over possible loss of Iranian supplies. It has decided ample stocks of crude oil are available to make up any deficiency, and that reserve refinery capacity can be brought into play.

If Iranian output falls off, the West will have no choice but to take up the slack elsewhere. The matter of a boycott of all Iranian oil is something else. Who would be served?

The West surely can use the oil. Reliance on other sources simply cuts down the safe margin of valuable reserves—a critical factor in war. And if we don't take it, the Communists may, even if it requires many years to build the facilities to get it out of Iran.

What it comes to, in other words, is how far we wish to penalize Iran for what we may regard as unfair, irrational behavior in violation of international law. We must be on guard not to penalize ourselves and the whole cause of freedom.

SCIENCE AND ROMANCE

Two college couples embarked on a long raft journey down the Allegheny, Ohio and Mississippi River valleys, for purposes of research. To suggestions that romance might also be involved, the leader of the group replied that there was much scientific work to do in the study of human relations which is the object of the project, and that there would be no time for romance.

It may be wondered whether there is a

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE TIDELANDS CASES

I became interested in the Tideland cases for two reasons, perhaps somewhat different from those which immediately troubled the people of the states of California, Texas and Louisiana.

The first reason is the constant encroachment of the federal government on the revenues of state governments. In some states, in which the federal government has established vast national parks and reservations, state revenues are in such a dismal condition that the states turn to Washington for a hand-out. This is bad practice. It was part of the theory of the New Dealers that states should be abolished and that the United States should be divided into administrative provinces—nine, if my memory serves me.

Such a procedure would have destroyed the sovereignty of the states and would have established an administrative government that could have been a basis for a totalitarian government. The scheme failed and has been forgotten, but federal encroachment on the rights of the states and of the people thereof has continued, often in such small respects that it amounts to a whittling process that can, in time, completely alter our form of government.

The second reason for my interest in the Tideland cases is that in the case of the United States vs. Texas, the Supreme Court decided against the state 4 to 3. Mr. Justice Hugo Black and Mrs. Justice William O. Douglas employed startling language, as in the California case, which ought not to be permitted to stand as precedents in American law.

The theory that what, at a particular moment, an administration of government believes to be necessary is ipso facto right is not American but Nazi law. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, throughout his long career as an Hegelian philosopher, essayist and jurist did believe that law as a function of the power of the state involved no moral criteria, but both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States conceived of law in this country as a limited procedure which, in the case of the individual, must not breach his inalienable rights and, in the case of states, must not invade their jurisdiction beyond the specific provisions of the Constitution.

Whereas the Democratic party pays lip service to the memory of Thomas Jefferson the tendency of both the Roosevelt and Truman administrations has been to ignore such limitations on the assumption that the necessities of the government are paramount. In the California and Texas cases, the Supreme Court upheld this doctrine without however a very clear definition of the necessities of the government.

Moreover when such phrases are employed as "bare legal title," "bare property ownership,"

Our social and economic life is organized around "legal titles." A man has a legal title to his home, his automobile, his furniture, his television set, etc. And that is all that he has. That legal title is his sole right to possess whatever he has, even the suit on his back.

There are countries where a "legal title" does not exist for the individual but is vested in the government. In such countries, the government can, in pursuit of its so-called necessities, divest the individual of his possessions, because the title to the means of production, distribution and exchange is socially vested in the state. This is Marxian socialism, now practiced in Soviet Russia and other Communist countries.

When, therefore, a justice of the United States Supreme Court denounces "legal titles" by using such an adjective as "bare" to describe them, he is moving a step toward the concept that a legal title is unimportant, and in ignoring for the moment all other considerations in these Tideland cases, such a concept as this held by Mr. Justice Douglas must not be permitted to stand:

"Property rights must then be so subordinated to political rights as in substance to coalesce and unite in the national sovereign."

The American conception of property rights is that they exist by right of law and not by the fiat of the administration in power. Were it otherwise, it would be possible for the Republicans, when they achieve power, to deny property rights to Democrats and vice versa. As a matter of fact, that process is actually employed today in countries where nationalization is incomplete, such as China and Czechoslovakia, and it was used by Soviet Russia to deprive land-owning farmers, Kulaks, of their property.

In a word, here we have an issue that transcends oil and goes to the heart of the American philosophy of life.

MUSCLE SPASM HEADACHES

A middle-aged woman had a pain at back of her neck, and as it felt more painful at the level of the ear, she consulted an ear-and-throat specialist. As he could find nothing wrong in the ear, he suggested that she was holding her head too rigid because of emotional disturbances. She then consulted an X-ray specialist who, after taking films and finding nothing wrong, suggested nerves as the cause.

She then consulted a general physician and he, after examination and finding no cause, and also knowing the patient and her background, likewise believed the head and neck ache to be caused by the nerves as he knew she brooded about various things.

What about an ache at back of head and neck; could it be caused by the emotions as suggested by these physicians?

In Archives of Otolaryngology (ear and throat) Dr. Ralph W. Stevens (Washington, Wash.) states that the commonest type of chronic headache encountered in nose and throat practice arises from sustained contraction (holding head in one position for a long time) of the muscles of the head and neck. Holding the head in the one position causes the development of hard nodules (lumps) causing spasm in the muscles back of neck.

Symptoms arising from these nodules or lumps cause one-sided headache in the front and side of forehead, sensation of heaviness in the back upper teeth (molars or grinders), deep pain in the eye or just above the eye, nausea and vomiting. The pain is usually steady, does not pulsate but does not interfere with sleep. The onset is usually in the mornings and usually lasts for a few days, but may last for years.

Emotional tension is the commonest cause of muscle spasm headache.

What about treatment of this type of headache? Dr. Stevens states that physical therapy (heat, electricity, massage) is the best treatment as it helps the circulation of the blood in these back of neck muscles and so prevents or helps to break up these hardened muscle fibers causing the spasm.

While procaine injections usually give immediate relief as they do in other conditions of strain or tension of muscles, Dr. Stevens states that procaine injections are not without danger and should be used only in early, very painful cases.

To the Mountains This Year

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DEW PEARSON

Washington—No announcement has been made to the American people, but, while their own food prices skyrocket, they will foot the bill to keep Greek food prices down. For the United States has agreed to subsidize over half of the Greek diet at cut-rate prices.

What happened in Greece is that a timid government permitted inflation to push prices out of reach of the average Greek. The Greek government refused to pass high taxes or inflation controls, so, to combat a sure breeder of communism, the USA has promised to underwrite a three-year rationing program.

Thus we will subsidize approximately 65 per cent of the Greek ration, or 1,500 calories out of a total daily ration of 2,400 calories. But what's more, the United States will not only guarantee the food, but will supply it at below-market prices. In other words, the American taxpayers will guarantee all Greeks two out of three meals a day—at cheaper prices than the Americans are paying for their own food.

This is on top of $2,000,000,000 in aid that has already been poured into Greece since the end of the war.

NOTE—Real profiteers are the Greek shipowners, who have grown fabulously wealthy overnight shipping ECA cargo. They bought their ships at bargain-basement prices from the United States, and are now charging scandalously high rates for use of these ships. In return, they are paying no taxes to the United States and almost none in Greece.

Price Stalemate

While Congress has been haggling over price controls, the Office of Price Stabilization has come to a virtual standstill. This is revealed in a confidential memo from Price headquarters to all branch chiefs and section heads.

Marked "for internal use only," the memo shows how the price agency has bogged down and become demoralized while waiting for Congress to make up its mind about controls.

"Naturally we regret the present situation since it has brought to a halt the development of five months of carefully considered and hard work," the memo declares. "However, neither recrimination nor looking for an easy way out will resolve our problems, and we ask that the agency continue to stand together as a team until such time as its immediate course can be more clearly charted."

The memo instructs price chiefs throughout the country that price boss Mike DiSalle "desires to maintain the status quo . . . in connection with our manufacturer regulations as well as with most other price actions."

As just one example, the confidential memo points out, "Mr. DiSalle felt that if we issued our price-increase actions during this period, Congress could take the position that we were showing pique and putative and trying to place it in the worst light. . . . Accordingly, our job is to make the best of a bad situation until such time as it is resolved by Congress."

Headaches and Humor
The most unpopular agency in the government, as everybody knows, is the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which collects our taxes. Actually however, the BIR is made up of human beings who, despite their unpleasant job, manage to get a few chuckles out of their relations with John Q. Public.

For instance, a disgruntled taxpayer recently wrote the bureau: "—and from him that hath not . . . shall be taken away even that which he hath."

That's from the Bible, you lugs, and I think it's the only part you believe in."

Another taxpayer attached this note to his income return: "Only two things in life are certain—death and taxes. What I resent is that they don't come in that order."

The BIR has heard about every alibi in the book for the filing of delinquent returns, but the most unusual came from a man who confessed: "I would have paid this sooner only I was laid up with a fractured ankle." Another taxpayer, explaining why he listed his mother-in-law as a dependent, added: "She eats like a horse."

Bureau officials get a lot of poetry in the mail, some of it anonymous and unprintable. A frustrated citizen attached the following to his return: A man stood at the pearly gate. His face was worn and old;

He merely asked of the man of fate
Admission to the fold.

"What have you done?" St. Peter asked.

"To seek admission here?"

"Why, I tried," said the man, "to figure

"My tax till the end of the year."

The gates swung open sharply.

As St. Peter touched the bell,

"Come in," he said, "and take a hurry."

"You've had enough of hell,"

The bureau received an anonymous letter from a taxpayer who felt that his obligation to the government was greater than his tax.

Enclosed was a substantial check, with an attached note: "Inasmuch as I wish to remain anonymous,

my wife please pardon me for not signing this check."

Another taxpayer being interviewed by a deputy collector was trying to get away with a whooping list of dependency claims.

The deputy, knowing that the man was lying, turned to another collector

and jokingly inquired:

"John, what time does that bus load of people who have gyped

the government leave today for the federal penitentiary?"

"Man, I just remembered," interrupted the startled taxpayer, "Scratch all those names off. I don't support nobody but myself."

Meat Price Protector

Price boss Mike DiSalle probably doesn't know it, but one of his top consultants on price ceilings was once fined $1,500 for violating price ceilings.

He is Arthur B. Maurer, a Kansas

City meatpacker, constant to the Office of Price Stabilization.

His job is to advise how high price ceilings should be on food.

Yet Maurer's own packing plant was fined $1,500 during World

War II for violating price ceilings.

He pleaded nolo contendere to 20 counts of overcharging. In other words, he placed himself at the mercy of the court and, on October 18, 1943, was found guilty of selling at wholesale "beef at a price in excess of the maximum price fixed by government regulation."

Now he is supposed to help protect the public from the high price of meat.

ANGLO-IRANIAN OIL DISPUTE

At some earlier stage, it might have been possible to settle the Anglo-Iranian Oil dispute in a way satisfactory to both sides. But W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's special envoy to Teheran, is learning that kind of settlement is no longer likely.

The Iranians have indeed agreed to resume talks with the British, but only on the understanding there will be no backdown on nationalizing the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. It will against Britain runs so deep that Iran is almost prepared to risk economic suicide to oust the company.

The atmosphere is genuinely hysterical. Moderate men are prisoners of the nation's anti-British extremists. Reason has little chance against the emotional tide.

Some American correspondents there feel the British don't realize how grim their prospects are. The time has passed when the Iranians would listen to better money offers for their oil, or anything similar. They don't even want U. S. economic aid if the price is yielding to Britain.

The only question now is this: What can be salvaged, if anything, from a situation governed by Iran's immovable insistence on nationalizing its oil?

The Iranians themselves have abandoned their original hopes that British technicians would stay and work for a national oil company. This means that, barring the unforeseen, all British contact with Iranian production will end.

Where, then, will the Iranians find the men to produce the oil? Given enough time—several years—they undoubtedly can develop their own technicians. But it is difficult to imagine they will be able to maintain high level output in the meantime, unless they should accept help from Russia or its satellites.

The Iranian leaders certainly recognize the risk of letting the bars down to the Russians in any way. But oil is the chief support of the Iranian economy, and in desperation the Iranian government might take Russian aid in preference to suicide.

In the light of this outlook, the British might have some sober second thoughts about denying all technical aid to Iran.

No matter how it is produced, there remains the question of where the oil will be sold. Up to now the West has provided the principal market, with Europe taking most. The Iranians do not believe these countries will boycott their oil. Indeed, they are convinced that even if they wished to do so, they would be compelled ultimately by world supply conditions to buy in anyway.

The West is no longer as gloomy as it originally was over possible loss of Iranian supplies. It has decided ample stocks of crude oil are available to make up any deficiency, and that reserve refinery capacity can be brought into play.

If Iranian output falls off, the West will have no choice but to take up the slack elsewhere. The matter of a boycott of all Iranian oil is something else. Who would be served?

The West surely can use the oil. Reliance on other sources simply cuts down the safe margin of valuable reserves—a critical factor in war. And if we don't take it, the Communists may, even if it requires many years to build the facilities to get it out of Iran.

What it comes to, in other words, is how far we wish to penalize Iran for what we may regard as unfair, irrational behavior in violation of international law. We must be on guard not to penalize ourselves and the whole cause of freedom.

SCIENCE AND ROMANCE

To suggestions that romance might also be involved, the leader of the group replied that there was much scientific work to do in the study of human relations which is the object of the project, and that there would be no time for romance.

'These Days'

THE TIDELANDS CASES

I became interested in the Tidelands cases for two reasons, perhaps somewhat different from those which immediately trouble the people of the states of California, Texas and Louisiana.

The first reason is the constant encroachment of the federal government on the revenues of state governments. In some states, in which the federal government has established vast national parks and reservations, state revenues are in such a dismal condition that the states turn to Washington for a hand-out. This is bad practice. It was part of the theory of the New Dealers that states should be abolished and that the United States should be divided into administrative provinces—nine, if my memory serves me.

Such a procedure would have destroyed the sovereignty of the states and would have established an administrative system that could have been a basis for a totalitarian government. The scheme failed and has been forgotten, but federal encroachment on the rights of the states and of the people thereof has continued, often in such small respects that it amounts to a whittling process that can, in time, completely alter our form of government.

The second reason for my interest in the Tidelands question is that in the case of the United States vs. Texas, the Supreme Court decided against the state 4 to 3. Mr. Justice Hugo Black and Mrs. Justice William O. Douglas employed startling language, as in the California case, which ought not to be permitted to stand as precedents in American law.

The theory that what, at a particular moment, an administration of government believes to be necessary is ipso facto right is not American but Nazi law. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, throughout his long career as an Hegelian philosopher, essayist and jurist did believe that law is a function of the power of the state involved no moral criteria, but both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States conceived of law in this country as a limited procedure which, in the case of the individual, must not breach his inalienable rights and, in the case of states, must not invade their jurisdiction beyond the specific provisions of the Constitution.

Whereas the Democratic party pays lip service to the memory of Thomas Jefferson, the tendency of both the Roosevelt and Truman administrations has been to ignore such limitations on the assumption that the necessities of the government are paramount. In the California and Texas cases, the Supreme Court upheld this doctrine without however a very clear definition of the necessities of the government.

Moreover when such phrases are employed as "bare legal title" or "mere property ownership," the peril is far beyond these particular cases. Our social and economic life is organized around "legal titles." A man has a legal title to his home, his automobile, his furniture, his television set, etc. And that is all that he has. That legal title is his sole right to possess whatever he has, even the suit on his back.

There are countries where a "legal title" does not exist for the individual but is vested in the government. In such countries, the government can, in pursuit of its so-called necessities, divest the individual of his possessions, because the title to the means of production, distribution and exchange is socially vested in the state. This is Marxian socialism, now practiced in Soviet Russia and other Communist countries.

When, therefore, a justice of the United States Supreme Court denounces "legal titles" by using such an adjective as "bare" to describe them, he is moving a step toward the concept that a legal title is unimportant per se. Ignoring for the moment all other considerations in these Tidelands cases, such a concept as this held by Mr. Justice Douglas must not be permitted to stand:

"Property rights must then be so subordinated to political rights as in substance to coalesce and unite in the national sovereign."

The American conception of property rights is that they exist by right of law and not by the fiat of the administration in power. Were it otherwise, it would be the case of the Republics, when they achieved power, to deny property rights to Democrats and vice versa. As a matter of fact, that process is actually employed today in countries where nationalization is incomplete, such as China and Czechoslovakia, and it was used by Soviet Russia to deprive land-owning farmers, Kulaks, of their property.

27 Ducks With One Shot
Darwin (P) — An aborigine claims 27 ducks killed with one shot from a duck gun. The wizard shot was made on a lagoon near Daily Waters, Northern Territory. H. B. Satterd told about the shot when he arrived in Darwin from Daily Waters. He said the lagoon was black with birds.

Questions — Answers
Q—Why is it that freezing water purifies it?
A—When water freezes the molecules get together in a regular solid crystalline arrangement. The molecules of the impurities are too big or too little to fit into the same space in the crystal as the water molecules, and so they get shoved aside. This process is used to purify many commercial chemicals.

Q—How accurate can a clock be?
A—A clock so accurate that it will gain or lose only one second in 30 years has just been put into operation. It is expected to vary less than one ten-thousandth of a second per day. This master timekeeper controls radio broadcast network switching clocks.

Mailing List for Birth Announcements

Dear Mrs. Post: Your book does not say specifically to whom birth announcements are sent. Assuming that the nearest relatives and friends would be told of the event, then what about announcements to them? It seems superfluous, it's true, but might they not feel slighted if omitted?

Answer: They generally are sent by those who have many friends living at a distance, but rarely, if ever, to near neighbors.

Evening Wedding Clothes

Dear Mrs. Post: Please advise us as to the proper clothes to wear to a wedding in the evening, eight o'clock (a) if going to the church only; (b) if also going to the reception.

Answer: If going to the church only, you would wear what you ordinarily wear to church. (b) If also going to the reception, a woman would wear a simple evening dress and a scarf over her hair (or something similar) which could be easily removed.

Echo Hill Hobbyists

Create Country Haven Near High Woods

In a world gone seemingly mad, where the neighbor's children people their make believe with atom bombs and jet propulsion . . . where fear and war are as much a state of mind as being, it seems almost miraculous to find a place or person apparently detached from 20th century qualms and aggressiveness. The Kransee home is like that—geographically, intellectually, and emotionally detached.

It's hot work on a warm summer afternoon to find the winding dirt road which lies half-way between High Woods and Mount Marion. The Kransees have lived there 10 years now, surrounded by their 100-acre wood tract, taking almost child-like delight in the dozens of chores that constitute daily life, and turning time some talents to a multitude of things. They describe themselves as "professional hobbyists."

Joseph Kransee met his wife on the Orient Express, the train linking Constantinople (now Istanbul) with western Europe. He was born in the southern section of the old Austro-Hungarian empire, she in Budapest. Both were bound for the United States. Once here they married. Since then they have globe-trotted together in nearly every country in the world.

Mr. Kransee is a hobbyist of long standing. "I have never been proud. I have done everything, from altar statuary to sign painting . . . anything to make a living for myself and my wife."

Promoted Therapy

At the close of the first World War he and the late Dr. Joseph Jastrow (they met in Egypt) were among the first to promote occupational therapy for veterans and disabled war victims. He has worked in King's Park, and was with the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene for 10 years.

"But now I am in my seventies. A man of 70 does not want any of the ordinary trappings, wealth and fame. I only want peace and a chance to do useful things."

The Kransees came to Ulster county by chance. A friend of his on the New York Stock Exchange had built the shell of their home, planning eventually to make some sort of a sanitarium. But the friend's patience and enthusiasm died quickly. After buying, the Kransees set out to make the stone and shingle frame into a home, adding here and there, finishing the inside with beams and panelling. Mrs. Kransee braided oval wool rugs in warm colors. Mr. Kransee made lantern-like lamps from discarded tin cans, and put built-in cupboards between the wall beams.

They are the sort of people who are continually busy. The upright frame loom, not unlike those in Mrs. Kransee's native Hungary, is moved from the barn in the winter to the house. Her work is both accomplished and beautiful. Summer weaving is done outside.

With the annual bridge championships just about to begin in Washington, D. C., my mind takes me back to the most dramatic hand of last year's tournament. The hand was dealt in the final round of the team championship and played an important part in my team's victory.

George Rapee played the South hand for our team. He won two rounds of trump in his own hand and then began the spades. When both opponents followed to the queen and ace of spades, Rapee drew the last trump with dummy's ace. He could then run the rest of the spades, for a total of 13 tricks.

In the other room Helen Sobel played the South hand for the other team. The opening lead was the same, and she likewise drew two trumps and began on the spades. After winning the first spade with the queen, however, she next finessed dummy's ten of spades.

This unexpected play turned out very badly. East naturally won with the jack of spades and returned his last spade, Mrs. Sobel had to ruff high to shut West out. That limited her to three discards on dummy's spades. Eventually she had to try the heart finesse, and she lost the slam when that finesse failed.

The curious thing about this dramatic hand is that Mrs. Sobel's play, although it looked like a ghastly blunder, was really quite thoughtful and was only very slightly inferior on a percentage basis to the winning play made by Rapee.

Her play was safe if West had the jack of spades, or if East held only two spades to the jack, or if East failed to return a spade, or if the heart finesse later won.

Price Index Declines

Washington, July 28 (AP)—The wholesale price index kept by the Bureau of Labor Statistics declined 0.1 per cent in the week ended July 24. This was announced by the bureau yesterday. It said the largest drop was in farm product prices. Grain, livestock, fruits and vegetables led the way down. The index after July 24 stood at 178 per cent of the 1926 average. It was 13.4 per cent above the pre-Korean war level and 8.1 per cent above the level of a year ago.

Wood Dictates
"As I carve into the wood, it unfolds certain thoughts. It is the wood that tells me exactly what to do."

One of his favorite pieces, a thin, gnarled and wraith-like figure, he terms "the intellectual fluffer of the modern world." Another, standing in the center of the living room table is called "Transformation, and typifies 'life as a constant state of flux.'" Intertwined in the highly polished maple are a cave man, a totem pole, a duck, a ram's horn, a rabbit, a bull, and suggestions of womanhood. The materialistic symbols at the base build up to the spiritualism of its cross-carved peak. Transformation, for him at least, is a physical representation of his own philosophy: "Heavenward recreation is man's destiny."

Balky Witness Stalls
Racket Jury Vacation

New York, July 28 (AP)—A balky witness has delayed the first vacation in two years for the Brooklyn "racket-busting" grand jury that precipitated police and political upheavals here.

The witness, Peter Bonina, described by police as a bookmaker, was ordered before the grand jury on Monday.

Visiting County Judge Clarence A. Brisco, of Steuben county, warned Bonina yesterday that he would hold him in high bail as a material witness if he continued to evade answering questions.

Bonina was hailed before the judge when he refused to answer questions on the ground of a lapse of memory about a certified $17,300 check from his wife to a "Patrolman X."

The jury, first convened in November, 1949, had planned to take about a month's vacation, starting yesterday.

To Help Education

New York, July 28 (AP)—School superintendents say more scientific research, with faster application of results, is needed to improve public education. Superintendents from cities across the country made the recommendations in a "charter for action" drawn up yesterday at the 10th annual summer work conference for superintendents at Columbia University. Other recommendations included more positive and practical citizenship teaching in schools, stronger attention to more participation by all citizens in school affairs.

Arrests Disclose
Horsemeat Market

New York, July 28 (AP)—A pair of arrests have led to the disclosure of a bootleg market in horsemeat, passed off on the public as filet mignon and round steak, authorities said.

New York District Attorney Frank S. Hogan last night announced the arrest of Michael Rodriguez, 46, on charges of bringing horsemeat into New York city for sale as beef.

In suburban Mamaroneck, N. Y., Herman Plotkin, of Newark, N. J., was released in $1,500 bail yesterday after pleading innocent to a similar horsemeat charge. Westchester county health commissioner Dr. William A. Holla said Plotkin was a member of a ring that peddled disguised horsemeat in New York city, Buffalo, N. Y., Jersey City, N. J., and Baltimore.

There was no indication from authorities whether the two cases were connected.

Hogan said Rodriguez made at least "a few thousand dollars" by selling six tons of horsemeat here during the last six months. The meat was sold through restaurants and butcher shops in Harlem and the lower Bronx, Hogan said.

The district attorney said Rodriguez purchased the meat out of state on twice weekly trips, paying between 25 cents and 40 cents a pound and reselling it for 50 to 60 cents a pound.

Dr. Holla said that Plotkin, who described himself as a dress salesman, carried the meat in his car trunk and "doctored" it with chemicals to give it a beefy hue.

Plotkin was arrested Wednesday, and arraigned yesterday, after a butcher tipped police, authorities said.

The wholesale price of genuine filet mignon and round steak is around 90 cents a pound.

Miss N.Y. State

Syracuse, N. Y., July 28 (AP)—Slim, brunette Louise Orlando, a 19-year-old sophomore at Syracuse University, will represent New York state in the annual Miss America pageant at Atlantic

City, N. J., this fall. She was chosen by the judges last night as Miss New York state, over three other candidates. She previously had been named Miss Syracuse.

The 100-pound beauty sang in the talent part of the contest. She is five feet, five inches in height.

Weddings Too Loud

Hudson Falls, N. Y., July 28 (AP)—Police want wedding parties here to stop, harking horns. The village board of trustees received as many complaints that police asked clergymen to use their influence.

Moth Is Giant

Edmonton (AP)—That was no ordinary moth that Mrs. H. Estrin caught in her home. The intruder had a five-inch wingspan.

very badly. East naturally won with the jack of spades and returned his last spade. Mrs. Sobel had to ruff high to shut West out. That limited her to three discards on dummy's spades. Eventually she had to try the heart finesse, and she lost the slam when that finesse failed.

The curious thing about this dramatic hand is that Mrs. Sobel's play, although it looked like a ghastly blunder, was really quite thoughtful and was only very slightly inferior on a percentage basis to the winning play made by Rapee.

Her play was safe if West had the jack of spades, or if East held only two spades to the jack, or if East failed to return a spade, or if the heart finesse later won.

It was very hard luck to have such a close decision go wrong in the finals of a national championship.

Price Index Declines

Washington, July 28 (AP)—The wholesale price index kept by the Bureau of Labor Statistics declined 0.1 per cent in the week ended July 24. This was announced by the bureau yesterday. It said the largest drop was in farm product prices. Grain, livestock, fruits and vegetables led the way down. The index after July 24 stood at 176 per cent of the 1926 average. It was 13.4 per cent above the pre-Korean war level and 8.1 per cent above the level of a year ago.

Wood Dictates
"As I carve into the wood, it unfolds certain thoughts. It is the wood that tells me exactly what to do."

One of his favorite pieces, a thin, gnarled and wraith-like figure, he terms "the intellectual flutter of the modern world." Another, standing in the center of the living room table is called "Transformation, and typifies "life as a constant state of flux." Intertwined in the highly polished maple are a cave man, a totem pole, a duck, a ram's horn, a rabbit, a bull, and suggestions of womanhood. The materialistic symbols at the base build up to the spiritualism of its cross-carved peak. Transformation, for him at least, is a physical representation of his own philosophy: "Heavenward recreation is man's destiny."

Balky Witness Stalls
Racket Jury Vacation

New York, July 28 (AP)—A balky witness has delayed the first vacation in two years for the Brooklyn "racket-busting" grand jury that precipitated police and political upheavals here.

The witness, Peter Bonina, described by police as a bookmaker, was ordered before the grand jury on Monday.

Visiting County Judge Clarence A. Brisco, of Steuben County, warned Bonina yesterday that he would hold him in high bail as a material witness if he continued to evade answering questions.

Bonina was hailed before the judge when he refused to answer questions on the ground of a lapse of memory about a certified $17,300 check from his wife to a "Patrolman X."

The jury, first convened in November, 1949, had planned to take about a month's vacation, starting yesterday.

To Help Education

New York, July 28 (AP)—School superintendents say more scientific research, with faster application of results, is needed to improve public education. Superintendents from cities across the country made the recommendations in a "charter for action" drawn up yesterday at the 10th annual summer work conference for superintendents at Columbia University. Other recommendations included more positive and practical citizenship teaching in schools, stronger attention to more participation by all citizens in school affairs.

Arrests Disclose
Horsemeat Market

New York, July 28 (AP)—A pair of arrests have led to the disclosure of a bootleg market in horsemeat, passed off on the public as filet mignon and round steak, authorities said.

New York District Attorney Frank S. Hogan last night announced the arrest of Michael Rodriguez, 46, on charges of bringing horsemeat into New York city for sale as beef.

In suburban Mamaroneck, N. Y., Herman Plotkin, of Newark, N. J., was released in $1,500 bail yesterday after pleading innocent to a similar horsemeat charge. Westchester county health commissioner Dr. William A. Holla said Plotkin was a member of a ring that peddled disguised horsemeat in New York city, Buffalo, N. Y., Jersey City, N. J., and Baltimore.

There was no indication from authorities whether the two cases were connected.

Hogan said Rodriguez made at least "a few thousand dollars" by selling six tons of horsemeat here during the last six months. The meat was sold through restaurants and butcher shops in Harlem and the lower Bronx, Hogan said.

The district attorney said Rodriguez purchased the meat out of state on twice weekly trips, paying between 25 cents and 48 cents a pound and reselling it for 50 to 60 cents a pound.

Dr. Holla said that Plotkin, who described himself as a dress salesman, carried the meat in his car trunk and "doctored" it with chemicals to give it a beefy hue. Plotkin was arrested Wednesday, and arraigned yesterday, after a butcher tipped police, authorities said.

The wholesale price of genuine filet mignon and round steak is around 90 cents a pound.

Miss N.Y. State
Syracuse, N. Y., July 28 (AP)—Slim, brunette Louise Orlando, a 19-year-old sophomore at Syracuse University, will represent New York state in the annual Miss America pageant at Atlantic

City, N. J., this fall. She was chosen by the judges last night as Miss New York State, over three other candidates. She previously had been named Miss Syracuse. The 100-pound beauty sang in the talent part of the contest. She is five feet, five inches in height.

New First and Third Basemen in Colonial Debut Against Amsterdam

Dodgers Get Only One Hit But Upset Yankees, 4-3

Ten Walks Lead To First Loss For Leaders

Medison Chokes On Sixth-Inning Threat

The Little League finally caught up with the Yankees yesterday. And, naturally, it was the Dodgers who had to play the leading role in the principal production of the season. And what's more they did it on only one base hit. New isn't that like Ebbets Field! Manager Bud Culleton's Dodgers did it by the barest of margins, 4 to 3, but it was sufficient to check an eight-game winning streak by Walt Black's Yankees and restore some measure of competition in the second round.

Taking advantage of Danny Steltz's wildness, the Dodgers ran up a 4-0 lead in the first two frames and held on grimly as the Yankees almost staged another of their last inning rallies. They picked up two runs but Ernie Madison survived the storm with a run to spare.

Trailing 4-1, the Yankees made their desperate bid in the sixth when Ronnie Ashdown was hit by a pitched ball and stole second. Bob Pratt made a nice play at deep short to toss Gene Nagle. Ashdown moved to third. Duke Semiol's double to center scored Ashdown and Charlie Bishop's hit sent Semiol across with the second run of the inning. Madison bore down at this point, however, and forced Ronnie Jones to ground to first and fanned Paul Klonowski to end the threat.

Walking Marston An error by Duke Semiol with the bases loaded accounted for a Dodger tally in the first. But the inspired Dodgers rally got into business in the second, with just one hit.

With two out, Steltz walked Herbert Armstrong, Bob Pratt, Nick Kearney and "Fibber" Davitt to force in a run. John Tumasek's single scored Pratt and Kearney. That was the lone Dodger safety.

The Dodgers were able to collect only four hits off the combined giants of starter Steltz, Semiol and Turk but 10 walks were the key to their success.

Yankees collected eight hits, including doubles by Semiol and Jones. Semiol had "3 for 3" with a double and two singles.

District 4 tournament takes over St. Mary's Field from Monday through Thursday. All games start at 6:30 p. m.

Harrison, Oliver Keep Slating Pace

St. Paul, Minn., July 28 (AP)—Par was just another word in the dictionary as golfers from Delaware and Illinois today started third round play in 11 strokes under that mark in quest of the St. Paul Open golf tournament's $15,000 prize money.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, St. Andrews, Ill., slotted around the course for a seven-under-par 65 yesterday to match up with the 120 posted for the first two days by Ed Oliver, Wilmington, Del. The return bid allegedly reducing par by five strokes yesterday after scoring a 66 for opening day rounds.

Oliver, weighing in at 220 pounds, voiced the hope he could hit a 62 score to clinch the $2,500 first prize money over the 6,587-year Keller Municipal course.

But it was just a hope as the two current leaders were pressed by the 134 score, posted by two veterans—Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif.

Police Set Games

The annual Kingston Patrolmen's Association baseball promotion will be played on Wednesday, Aug. 29 at municipal stadium in the form of a twilight-night doubleheader, it was announced today.

The police department nine will renew its rivalry with Cordts Hose in a 7-inning opener, with an all-star squad from the City Baseball League opposing the Long Island Greys or Georgia Chain Gang in the feature attraction.

The Greys feature several post-war Kingston Recreation favorites like Frank Shelly, Frankie Bambara, Johnny Gentile, Steve Price, Steve Ristau and others. The Chain Gang is the most colorful novelty attraction in semi-pro baseball.

Patrolman Earl Schoonmaker, president of the KPA, and Patrolman Edward "Chief" Leonard, who are in charge of the baseball promotion, said they will also have a "surprise" announcement in the next few days in connection with the baseball game.

Olive League Opens Schedule

West Shokan and High Point won first round games in the Olive Memorial Baseball League this week.

The newly-organized league for youngsters in the 10 to 18 year bracket is the brainchild of Bill Frankle of West Shokan and is sponsored by the Olive Memorial Post of the American Legion.

Teams comprising the circuit are West Shokan, High Point, Samsonville and West Hurley. The league plays games on Tuesday evening and Saturday afternoon.

Eckert permitted only five hits as West Shokan eked out a 3 to 2 verdict over West Hurley in the league opener.

Peter Keator's single that was turned into a three-run "home" when the High Point outfielder could not find it in the tall grass created a 4-4 tie between Samsonville and Camp High Point in the second game of the schedule. Samsonville, High Point pitcher, racked up eight strikeouts in six innings.

High Point got off to a fast start in whipping Samsonville, 7 to 3, in a loosely-played game in which the teams combined for a total of 13 errors.

Becomes of Samsonville collected two hits and stole three bases.

So you think the life of a major league manager is all peaches and cream? Well, listen to Paul Richards' tale of woe.

Richards, top candidate for manager of the year honors, led his Chicago White Sox into Yankee Stadium last night to battle the league-leading New York Yankees.

The Yankees won, 3-1, by the grace of fickle fortune to retain their one game lead in the tight American League pennant race which finds the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians tied for second and the White Sox fourth, 4½ games off the pace.

Chicago, trying to climb back in the fight, entered the game nursing six defeats in its last seven games and a tongue lashing from Richards.

The Yanks led, 3-1, going into the ninth. The Sox scored a run with none out and had two runners on base when a thunderstorm halted play for about 15 minutes. Play was resumed and with one out, pinch-hitter Bert Haas socked a two-run single to put the Sox in front, 4-3. Another hit loaded the bases but then the storm broke again.

Plate Umpire Hank Soar waited an hour and two minutes and then called the game. The act wiped out Chicago's lead and the score reverted to the end of eight innings and the Yanks were the victors.

Richards, hopping mad, announced that he would file a protest. "It wasn't playable," Richards fumed. "There is no such thing as an unplayable field. All they had to do was take the cover off, and they didn't do that."

They told us we could stay until dawn, that there was no time limit. Why such a hurry? If they want a time limit, let the league put one on. This game could win or lose the pennant for any one of five clubs."

Home runs by Gene Woodling and Joe DiMaggio off Billy Pierce accounted for the Yankee lead going into the ninth. Rookie Tom Morgan then lost his stuff and before the rains ended the game four other Yankee pitchers saw action in the stormy inning.

Yank Manager Casey Stengel also got into an argument with the umpires. Stengel protested the banishment of third baseman Gil McDougald by umpire Bill Mc-

Farm Prices Are Still On Decline 5th Month

Washington, July 28 (AP)—The general level of farm prices, according to Agriculture Department figures, has declined for the fifth consecutive month since reaching a record last February.

The department said yesterday the level dropped 2.3 per cent between mid-June and mid-July.

That was the six per cent under the February peak, but about 16 per cent above pre-World level.

Prospects of bountiful harvests have been a major factor in turning farm prices down.

The sharpest decreases reported were in cotton, meat animals, oil-bearing crops, peaches and oranges.

Buffer Zone . . .

(2) arrangements for an exchange of prisoners and (3) recommendations to the governments of countries concerned on both sides.

The latter problem would include the Red demand for a withdrawal of all foreign troops.

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief UN negotiator, gave the United Nations position on the buffer zone in a 55-minute speech yesterday. He gave Nam two maps to illustrate his point.

When Nam presented the Communist view today, Nuchols said he was "more obviously emphatic than before."

The two truce teams are miles apart in their views on the buffer zone.

Deep Into Red Territory
The present battle lines, where the UN wants the line to be drawn, is 25 miles deep into Red Korea on the east coast. It averages about 20 miles deep on the central front, and dips south below the parallel only on the west.

In addition to the buffer zone across the Korean peninsula, the envoys also may discuss a three-mile naval neutral zone offshore. United Nations warships have almost complete control of the seas, particularly on the east coast where they have pounded Wonsan incessantly.

While the negotiators talked behind closed doors, Koreans in Seoul made no secret of their feelings.

They paraded through the downtown area, carrying placards and shouting slogans demanding an armistice which would completely unify the country.

Some of the slogans: "Down with the 38th Parallel." "No peace on the 38th Parallel." "We reject armistice without unification."

Big Demonstration
The parade stretched out over ten city blocks. It circled the business district and passed the empty capital building and several U. S. Eighth Army headquarters buildings.

The marchers had a holiday air as they shouted and waved their banners. They laughed and smiled at the crowds of Koreans and soldiers along the route.

The parade was led by a band playing U. S. martial airs.

President Syngman Rhee of South Korea has objected to any cease-fire on the old pre-war boundary.

Rhee wants the United Nations to draw the Yalu river boundary between Korea and Manchuria, chase the Chinese Communists out of Korea, disarm the North Korean Reds, and unify the country under his administration.

The UN wants the buffer zone along the present lines primarily for military purposes. Allied commanders say the present line offers better defensive positions in case the Reds use the cease-fire only as a breathing spell in order to build up their forces for another attack.

The Reds want the buffer zone along 38 for two reasons: It would force the UN allies to withdraw from hard-won ground, and it would again give the Reds control of all North Korea.

Malik . . .
consultations as an instrument of peaceful cooperation between peoples.

Non-interference in the domestic affairs of non-Communist countries.

General world program for radical disarmament.

Co-operation by the Soviet Union in a world plan for improving economic and social conditions in backward countries.

A Big Four conference among the foreign ministers of the Soviet Union, United States, Britain and France.

Correspondence between Soviet citizens and citizens of other countries and a program for more travel by foreigners in Russia and by Russians in other countries.

The Quakers said they described themselves as pacifists while talking with Malik and said they told him they were opposed to Britain's current rearmament program. They said they emphasized, however, that the British government does not want war any more than the Quakers do.

Malik, they said, made a detailed answer to each of the seven points, but his replies merely constituted a citation of the record of the Soviet in the United Nations and elsewhere on the subjects mentioned.

The Orinoco and Zambesi rivers each have a total length of 1,600 miles.

noted critical defense areas—for instance, where military installations have created terrific demand for housing.

5. Ban livestock slaughter quotas, an OPS program which it says is designed to block meat black markets. Foes of the quota system contend it encourages black markets.

Senator Maybank (D-S.C.), chairman of the Senate-House Conference Committee, tried unsuccessfully to have the ban killed or softened. He said he will introduce a separate bill to permit the slaughter quota program.

6. Continue with some changes the present program covering allocation of scarce essential materials and establishment of priorities to channel them to essential uses.

7. Create a small defense plants administration to help small firms get a larger share of defense contracts.

8. Continue import controls on fats and oils, and bring dairy products under the program in certain circumstances.

9. Continue the wage control program without any change in the basic provisions of the present law.

Green Jailed . . .

Henry Winston—jumped a total of $80,000 CRC-supplied bail, starting the current legal action against the Reds by "angels."

Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan opened the hearings, seeking to find out the identities of subscribers to the bail fund. He said that such a course might provide a clue to the missing Reds.

But the bail fund's trustees balked, and Judge Ryan sentenced three to jail for contempt. He gave millionaire leftist Frederick Vanderbilt Field 90 days, and mystery writer Dashiell Hammett and W. Alphaeus Hunt each six months. All are appealing.

Federal Judge John F. X. McGohey meted out Abner Green's six month contempt sentence yesterday when Green flatly told him "I will not obey" court orders to produce CRC records before a federal grand jury.

That stood as entirely official until the late evening.

Then Clayton Fritchey, information director for the Defense Department, stepped in with just enough cold water to wash the expected talk that Congress was likely to take a vivid interest in what had been pictured as treachery under the white flag. Fritchey told reporters:

The briefing officer's on-the-record statement "should not be construed as a defense policy or a change of policy, or a policy by

It was, Fritchey said, "simply an officer giving advice" to newsmen and should be "judged only as a comment . . ."

He indicated that the briefing statement had not been cleared with Secretary Marshall nor with General Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

But there was nothing in what Fritchey said that denied the accuracy of what the briefing officer said.

"We reject armistice without unification."

Big Demonstration
The parade stretched out over ten city blocks. It circled the business district and passed the empty capital building and several U. S. Eighth Army headquarters buildings.

The marchers had a holiday air as they shouted and waved their banners. They laughed and smiled at the crowds of Koreans and soldiers along the route.

The parade was led by a band playing U. S. martial airs.

President Syngman Rhee of South Korea has objected to any cease-fire on the old pre-war boundary.

Rhee wants the United Nations to drive the Yalu river boundary between Korea and Manchuria, chase the Chinese Communists out of Korea, disarm the North Korean Reds, and unify the country under his administration.

The UN wants the buffer along the present lines primarily for military purposes. Allied commanders say the present line offers better defensive positions in case the Reds use the cease-fire only as a breathing spell in which to build up their forces for another attack.

The Reds want the buffer zone along 38 for two reasons: It would force the UN allies to withdraw from hard-won ground, and it would again give the Reds control of all North Korea.

consultations as an instrument of peaceful cooperation between peoples.

Non-interference in the domestic affairs of non-Communist countries.

General world program for radical disarmament.

Co-operation by the Soviet Union in a world plan for improving economic and social conditions in backward countries.

A Big Four conference among the foreign ministers of the Soviet Union, United States, Britain and France.

Correspondence between Soviet citizens and citizens of other countries and a program for more travel by foreigners in Russia and by Russians in other countries.

The Quakers said they described themselves as Pacifists while talking with Malik and said they told him they were opposed to Britain's current rearmament program. They said they emphasized, however, that the British government does not want war any more than the Quakers do.

Malik, they said, made a detailed answer to each of the seven points, but his replies merely constituted a citation of the record of the Soviet in the United Nations and elsewhere on the subjects mentioned.

5. Ban livestock slaughter quotas, an OPS program which it says is designed to block meat black markets. Foes of the quota system contend it encourages black markets.

Senator Maybank (D-S.C.), chairman of the Senate-House Conference Committee, tried unsuccessfully to have the ban killed or softened. He said he will introduce a separate bill to permit the slaughter quota program.

6. Continue with some changes the present program covering allocation of scarce essential materials and establishment of priorities to channel them to essential uses.

7. Create a small defense plants administration to help small firms get a larger share of defense contracts.

8. Continue import controls on fats and oils, and bring dairy products under the program in certain circumstances.

9. Continue the wage control program without any change in the basic provisions of the present law.

Henry Winston—jumped a total of $50,000 CRC-supplied bail, starting the current legal actions against the Reds "bail angels."

Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan opened the hearings, seeking to find out the identities of subscribers to the bail fund. He said that such a course might provide a clue to the missing Reds.

But the bail fund's trustees balked, and Judge Ryan sentenced three to jail for contempt. He gave millionaire leftist Frederick Vanderbilt Field 90 days, and mystery writer Dashiell Hammett and W. Alphaeus Hunt each six months. All are appealing.

Federal Judge John F. X. McGohey meted out Abner Green's six month contempt sentence yesterday when Green flatly told him "I will not obey" court orders to produce CRC records before a federal grand jury.

Wash Officials

into counter offensive . . . this was so effective that the Chinese Communists were driven back in confusion, losing over 100,000 men and suffering 10,000 prisoners. This was their most disastrous defeat . . .

"Acting in good faith, the UN (after cease fire talks were proposed) halted the advance . . . when in position to achieve even greater success."

Communists Build Up
"The picture since then has been one of constant and continuous (Communist) buildup behind screening forces."

"All evidence points to a tremendous buildup of North Korean forces."

"It is hoped that these acts are not an indication of bad faith."

That stood as entirely official until the late evening.

Then Clayton Fritchey, information director for the Defense Department, stepped in with just enough cold water to wash the expected talk that Congress was likely to take a vivid interest in what had been pictured as treachery under the white flag, Fritchey told reporters.

The briefing officer's on-the-record statement "should not be construed as a defense policy or a change of policy, or a policy by the army chief of staff."

It was, Fritchey said, "simply an officer giving advice" to newsmen and should be "judged only as a comment . . ."

He indicated that the briefing statement had not been cleared with Secretary Marshall nor with General Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

But there was nothing in what Fritchey said that denied the accuracy of what the briefing officer said.

Loathe to Fight

Washington, July 28 (AP)—Armed with a quotation from Martin Luther, Senator Douglas (D-Ill.) was embarked on what he calls a "struggle with the President" over two federal judgeship appointments. Asserting that he has no personal resentment against President Truman and is loathe to make the fight, Douglas quoted in the original German Luther's "God helping me, I can do no other" in explaining his stand. Luther was the 16th Century friar who rebelled against the authority of the Pope of the Roman Catholic Church and set up the Reformed Church. The Illinois senator explained the stand on the judgeship controversy to a reporter after he had announced he will oppose personally the nominations of Joseph J. Drucker and Cornelius J. Harrington when they come before the Senate Judiciary Committee next week.

Storms Stop Mercury

New York, July 28 (AP)—A series of thunderstorms last night and today dropped temperatures some 15 degrees from yesterday's sun-baked high of 82, but tied up airlines and highways. An Eastern Airline plane from Miami was unable to land at LaGuardia early today and put down instead at Philadelphia. Other incoming flights were held up 45 minutes to an hour, and outbound flights from 20 to 30 minutes.

Planes Grounded

Los Angeles, July 28 (AP)—Western Airlines planes were grounded today by a strike of the air carrier mechanics' Association. The strike was called late yesterday when negotiations headed by a federal mediator, James Haloren, broke down. About 300 mechanics and ground service personnel walked off their jobs. Western's 180 pilots and 100 stewards refused to cross the mechanics' picket lines.

Would Revoke Rights

Washington, July 28 (AP)—Legislation aimed at revoking the citizenship of naturalized citizens who refuse to testify regarding subversive activities was introduced yesterday by Rep. Walter (D-Pa.). It would apply only in the cases of naturalized aliens who refuse to give non-incriminating testimony to congressional committees within ten years after they are naturalized.

Leaves for Paris

Salon, Indo-China, July 28 (AP)—General Jean De Latre De Tassigny left by air for Paris today to discuss with French leaders the possibility of a Korean cease-fire on the fighting in Indo-China. De Latre is expected to press his government for more men and arms for both the French and Vietnamese armies fighting Communist-led forces.

WOODSTOCK

By Richard E. Thibout, Jr.

Primitive Painting In Parnassus Show

Woodstock, July 28—An unusual exhibition of early American primitive paintings and sculpture from the collection of Thomas D. and Constance R. Williams of Litchfield, Mass., is now on view at the Parnassus Square Gallery, and will continue through Saturday, August 4. Bidding for the instant attention of both collectors and other visitors to the gallery are the six large wooden figures which once rode the early Barnum and Bailey circus wagons. Worn with age and no doubt many hundreds of miles of travel, the two giant monkeys are enchanting reminders of the old circus days, as well as the imposing Turk and Indian maiden, all of the flamboyant period from 1880 to 1903.

Sitting stiffly remote from today's upheavals, in their starched faces and dark heavy fabrics are the subjects of the several pairs of family portraits—Judge and Mrs. Ebenezer Foster of Brewster, N. Y., painted about 1839, and Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Salisbury Field of Amherst, Mass., painted by Erastus. In the same group is the utterly delightful portrait of Jedediah Young's four young children, each rigidly sewing the world with wide started gaze, shared even by their little dog.

Among the smaller paintings, reflecting the preoccupations of the painters of 1820, are two New York scenes, "The Narrows," and "The Hudson," and "The Death of Wolfe," by John Pet in 1775 in the popular medium of the time, oil on glass. There is also a typical ship "Barque Bridgeport." A general of Kingston High School, class of 1946, he received his boot training at Newport, R. I. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Smedes, Ontario Trail. Accompanying him home were Don Beavis and Fred VanDette of Detroit, Mich. both fireman apprentices at the same naval school.

Testifying to the meticulous care with which young ladies of 1835 inscribed family history in needlework, is the Hunt Family Memorial traced in delicate satin tree and flower patterns. Included also are pottery jugs from New Hampshire, quaint tin cookie molds, a fine tin weather vane of Columbia and penmanship drawings of a lion and deer.

Gathered together, these treasured fragments of another age are well worth a look and offer a nostalgic excursion into the past.
The Parnassus Square Gallery is open daily from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Village Notes

Woodstock, July 28—Mr. and Mrs. William Bronner of Circleville are the parents of a son, William Calvert Bronner, born July 11, weighing six pounds, seven ounces. Mrs. Bronner is the former Mary Townley of this village.

Geraldine Jeronimek celebrated her third birthday on Thursday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jeronimek, with a party for 15 of her classmates from the Gretchen Smith school.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward Garland are entertaining Mrs. Gurland's brother and sister-in-law, William Simmons and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Simmons of New York for the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Simmons are also accompanied by their daughter Wendy.
Mr. and Mrs. George M. Hard are having for their week-end guests Mrs. Hard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Donahue of Philadelphia.

Grievance Day

Woodstock, July 28—Grievance Day will be held at the Town Hall on Tuesday, August 14, at the town clerk's office, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 12 noon, and 1 to 4 p. m.

English Channel Swim

Deal, Eng., July 28 (AP)—Ned Barrie, 54-year-old Scotswoman from Edinburgh, entered the water this morning in an attempt to swim the English Channel. Barrie swam from Cap Griz Nez, France, to England last year and is trying the reverse course now. Only three persons ever have made the swim in both directions. There was no word, meanwhile, of the six Egyptian and two British swimmers who plunged into the chilly waters on the French side this morning.

Two Teen-Agers Attacked

Denver, July 28 (AP)—Mayor Quigg Newton early today ordered police into an all-out, 24-hour a day attempt to find the attacker of two teen-agers who were assaulted and injured critically. The two—one of them an air force soldier—were found unconscious on a school ground early yesterday. They were the victims of what Detective Chief Leslie Radel said was "one of the most fiendish crimes" in his experience.

Typhoon Shifts

Manila, July 28 (AP)—A typhoon with center winds of 120 miles an hour today shifted its direction away from the Philippine Islands. The Manila Weather Bureau said the typhoon tonight was 430 miles east of Virac, Catanduanes Island. It has shifted course, the bureau said, from west-northwest to northwest. It appeared the change in direction would carry the main force of the typhoon north and east of the Philippines.

Port Ewen Crash

Automobiles driven by Joseph Lusino, 60, Brooklyn, and Samuel Pralis of 1 Fountain place, Poughkeepsie, collided on Route 9W at Port Ewen this morning at 2:15 o'clock, the sheriff's office reported. Lusino suffered injuries to his right leg and lacerations to the face, and a passenger, Augustus Ciddano, 62, also of Brooklyn, received cuts to the left knee and bruises to the chest, the sheriff's office said.

Negroes are believed to have lived in Africa since 30,000 B. C.

Wounded Again

CPL. RONALD R. DECKER
Mr. and Mrs. Myron Lane of Port Ewen have received a letter from their nephew, Cpl. Ronald R. Decker, that he is a patient at a hospital in Japan being treated for leg and shoulder wounds suffered in Korea. He is in hopes of being transferred soon to the United States. Last year Cpl. Decker received the Purple Heart for wounds and went back into frontline action again.

Visits Parents

Stuart C. Smedes, fireman apprentice at the U. S. Navy Pipefitters School, Norfolk, Va., was home for the week-end. A graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1946, he received his boot training at Newport, R. I. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Smedes, Ontario Trail. Accompanying him home were Don Beavis and Fred VanDette of Detroit, Mich. both fireman apprentices at the same naval school.

20 Injured in Crash Of Bus and Steel Truck

Somerset, Pa., July 28 (AP)—Twenty persons on a New York to Pittsburgh Greyhound bus were injured late yesterday when the bus ripped into the rear of a truck loaded with steel on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

The bus driver, William Bigley, 30, of North Braddock, Pa., was pinned in the cab as the entire front end of the bus was squashed in. A passing army convoy used heavy wreckers to rip apart the crushed vehicle to get him out.

The truck driver, Maurice J. Ostroff, Uniontown, Pa., was unhurt. State police were unable to determine the cause of the accident. The scene of the wreck was about 55 miles east of Pittsburgh near the Laurel Hill tunnel.

Rose Wetner, (354 Stewart avenue) Bethpage, Long Island, N. Y., was injured but did not require hospitalization.

Brooklyn Youth Is Hurt in Trailer Mishap

William Atkinson, 16, of 504 Hancock street, Brooklyn, suffered internal injuries when the tractor-trailer in which he was a passenger overturned over Route 9W one mile south of Ulster Park at 9:45 p. m. Friday, state police of the Highland station reported. Atkinson was taken by Commers ambulance to Kingston Hospital, where his condition today was reported as "fair."
The owner-driver of the tractor-trailer, Thomas Gelzer, 31, of 186 Van Buren street, Brooklyn, told reporters he was driving south on 9W when an unknown vehicle forced him off the highway. The truck went down an embankment and overturned, troopers said. No arrest was made.

Hede Massing Next

Washington, July 28 (AP)—The Senate's Internal Security subcommittee will turn next to Hede Massing, former wife of Gerhardt Eisler, in its search for any subversive influences on the nation's Far Eastern policy. Chairman McCarran (D-Nev.) described Mrs. Massing as an ex-Communist who "operated on the higher level and who was in the know." A witness in the perjury trial of Alger Hiss, Mrs. Massing already has testified at closed-door sessions of the subcommittee. McCarran told reporters she was "most cooperative and helpful."

County Firemen

Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, Peter A. Kerpman, of the New York State Police Conference, offered a number of suggestions for the development of the organization. Present membership now includes 60 companies and a total of 1140 members.

Under topics for discussion was the question as to whether the County Mutual Aid Plan, which arranges for an exchange of assistance and equipment between companies in the event of a large fire, should continue in its present form, or be placed under Civilian Defense in the event of an emergency. It was agreed to postpone the decision until a later meeting.

Lapo Honored

During the meeting Reginald Lapo was presented with past president's pin.

Financial, audit and membership reports were made, and it was announced that committees would be appointed at the August meeting.

It was also announced that the Port Ewen Fire and Drum Corps would join the parade line, marching with the A. H. Wicks Engine & Truck Company of Kingston.

Tribute to Deceased

The invocation was given by the Rev. Harvey I. Todd of the Dutch Reformed Church of Woodstock, and tribute was paid to the following members of the association who have died since the last annual meeting: George W. Canfield, Weiner Hose Company, Kingston; C. G. A. Fischer, Scorsby Hose Company, Ellenville; Harry Ellsworth, St. Remy Fire Company; Frank Conklin, Active Hose Company, Rosendale; and Richard Greene, Willetts Hose Company, Kingston.

Following the meeting several motion picture films were shown, and later members adjourned to the Woodstock Fire House where refreshments were served.

Resistance Heavy

Far East Air Force planes flew 3,085 sorties in the week ended Friday. They destroyed or damaged more than 800 vehicles and 249 railroad cars and inflicted about 700 Red troop casualties.

'Infamous Conduct'

Washington, July 28 (AP)—President Truman has branded as "infamous conduct" a purge program in Communist Hungary in which many thousands of people not in the good graces of the regime have been reported forced from their homes. The President said in a statement yesterday the United States will take steps to hold the Hungarian Communist government "accountable before the world" for what Mr. Truman called "flagrant violation" of the human rights clause of Hungary's peace treaty.

Cordts to March

Members of Cordts Hose desiring to accept the invitation to participate in the Poughkeepsie parade Monday are requested to report at the enginehouse at 8 p. m. to motor to the Bridge City. The local firemen will be led by the 56th Regimental Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps.

Unconscious Man

from the bridge tower to the roadway.

Suffering from severe head injuries, the unknown man remained unconscious at the hospital this morning and could not be questioned. Several persons who know men answering his description have been taken to the hospital room by sheriff's men, but no identification had been made up to press time today.

'I Love Teale' Tattoo

The man apparently is from 25 to 30 years old, is five feet, 10 inches tall and weighs about 175 pounds. He has dark brown curly hair, and when found was wearing a T-shirt, dungarees and black shoes. On his right forearm are tattooed the words, "I Love Teale." The only article found in his pockets was a partially used book of matches.

Any person knowing a man fitting this description and who might be missing has been asked to contact the sheriff's office, telephone Kingston 3640.

Among those who have been working on the case are Under-sheriff Clayton Vredenburg, County Investigator Leonard Belmore, Identification Officer Arthur H. Brown, Deputies Carl Cline and William Churchill. City police who responded on the first call were Patrolmen George Dougherty and Albert Eisele.

President . . .

—not in reserve, not later, but now.

"We must have men, ships, planes, tanks, and bombs—on hand—ready for any emergency." The President said Russia's actions "certainly are no indication of peaceful intentions" and went on:

"We do not yet know whether the Communists really desire peace in Korea or whether they are simply trying to gain by negotiations what they have not been able to gain by conquest."

"We intend to find out. The talks can be successful if the Communists are in fact ready to give up aggression in Korea."

He declared that the North Koreans and Chinese Communists "are getting a steady flow of new equipment from the Soviet Union for ground and air use."

Won't Give Up

"But whatever happens in Korea," the President asserted, "we must not make the mistake of jumping to the conclusion that the Soviet rulers have given up their idea of world conquest."

The President charged that the armed forces of Russia's satellites "are rapidly being brought to a peak of military readiness" and that the Russians themselves "have more than four million men under arms in Europe and the Far East."

Mr. Truman said he is dedicated to the building up of such armed strength in the free world that "the Kremlin will have to drop its plans for aggression and subversion."

interfere with their duties in those respects," the referendum committee's statement said.

Blame Commissioners

The statement added that "it was not by choice that the firemen and policemen sought this referendum. It became necessary because the Board of Police Commissioners as well as the Board of Fire Commissioners failed to take any action on our proposals submitted to them months ago. The only manner available to us, for obtaining desperately needed wage increases, was to appeal directly to the people of our city by way of referendum. We do not believe that they will let us down."

In revealing that the second petition has already been started, the statement noted that "every resident of Kingston has a right to sign the petition now being circulated if he or she was registered in the 1950 election and did not sign the original petition circulated last month."

The statement, was signed by Robert Hardwick, chairman of the firemen's referendum committee, and Earl Schoonmaker, chairman of the policemen's referendum committee.

man told newsmen, "as there seem to be some questions on which the British government wanted clarification. I felt it would be easier to personally discuss them than by telegram."

Before taking off from Tehran, Harriman had last minute consultations with Premier Mohammad Mossadegh and the shah.

He was accompanied on the flight in a U. S. Air Force Constellation by Sir Francis Shepherd, British ambassador to Iran, who said:

"I am quite happy with the work done by Mr. Harriman. He has been admirable."

The party, which included independent oil consultant Walter Levi and William Rountree, a State Department official, was met by U. S. Ambassador Walter A. Gifford and British Foreign Office officials.

Loathe to Fight
Washington, July 28 (AP)—Armed with a quotation from Martin Luther, Senator Douglas (D-Ill.) was embarked on what he calls a "struggle with the President" over two federal judges' appointments. Asserting that he has no personal resentment against President Truman and is loathe to make the fight, Douglas quoted in the original German Luther's "God helping me, I can do no other" in explaining his stand. Luther was the 16th Century friar who rebelled against the authority of the Pope of the Roman Catholic Church and set up the Reformed Church. The Illinois senator explained his stand on the judgeship controversy to a reporter after he had announced he will oppose personally the nomination of Joseph R. Murphy and Cornelius J. Harrington when they come before the Senate Judiciary Committee next week.

Storms Stop Mercury
New York, July 28 (AP)—A series of thunderstorms last night and today dropped temperatures some 15 degrees from yesterday's summer high of 92.3, but tied up airlines and highways. An Eastern Airline plane from Miami was unable to land at LaGuardia early today and put down instead at Philadelphia. Other incoming flights were held up 45 minutes to an hour, and outbound flights from 20 to 30 minutes.
Planes Grounded
Los Angeles, July 28 (AP)—Western Airlines planes were grounded today by a strike of the Air Carrier Mechanics Association. The strike was called late yesterday when negotiations headed by a federal mediator, James Haloren, broke down. About 300 mechanics and ground service personnel walked off their jobs. Western's 180 pilots and 100 stewardesses refused to cross the mechanics' picket lines.
Would Revoke Rights
Washington, July 28 (AP)—Legislation aimed at revoking the citizenship of naturalized citizens who refuse to testify regarding subversive activities was introduced yesterday by Rep. Walter (D-Pa.). It would apply only in the cases of naturalized aliens who refuse to give non-incriminating testimony to congressional committees within ten years after they are naturalized.

English Channel Swim
Deal, Eng., July 28 (AP)—Ned Barnie, 54-year-old Scotsman from Edinburgh, entered the water this morning in an attempt to swim the English Channel. Barnie swam from Cap Gris Nez, France, to England last year and is trying the reverse course now. Only three persons ever have made the swim in both directions. There was no word, meanwhile, of the six Egyptian and two British swimmers who plunged into the chilly waters on the French side this morning.
Two Teen-Agers Attacked
Denver, July 28 (AP)—Mayor Quigg Newton early today ordered police into an all-out, 24-hour a day attempt to find the attacker of two teen-agers who were assaulted and injured critically. The two—one of them an air force soldier—were found unconscious on a school ground early yesterday. They were the victims of what Detective Chief Lee Radel said was "one of the most heinous crimes" in his experience.
Typhoon Shifts
Manila, July 28 (AP)—A typhoon with center winds of 120 miles an hour today shifted its direction away from the Philippine Islands. The Manila Weather Bureau said the typhoon tonight was 430 miles east of Virac, Catanduanes Island. It has shifted course, the bureau said, from west-northwest to northwest. It appeared the change in direction would carry the main force of the typhoon north and east of the Philippines.

Woodstock
Woodstock, July 28—An unusual exhibition of early American primitive paintings and sculpture from the collection of Thomas D. and Constance R. Williams of Litchfield, Mass., is now on view at the Parnassus Square Gallery, and will continue through Saturday, August 4. Bidding for the instant attention of both collectors and other visitors to the gallery are the six large wooden figures which once rode the early Barnum and Bailey circus wagons. Worn with age and no doubt many hundreds of miles of travel, the two giant monkeys are enchanting reminders of the old circus days, as well as the imposing Turk and Indian maiden, all of the flamboyant period from 1880 to 1903.
Sitting stiffly remote from today's upheavals, in their starched laces and dark heavy fabrics are the subjects of the several pairs of family portraits—Judge and Mrs. Ebenezer Foster of Brewster, N. Y., painted about 1839, and Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Salisbury Field, of Amherst, Mass., painted by Erastus. In the same group is the utterly delightful portrait of Jedediah Young's four young children, all rigidly viewing the world with wide startled gaze, shared even by their little dog.
Among the smaller paintings, reflecting the preoccupations of the painters of 1820, are two New York scenes, "The Narrows," and "The Hudson," and "The Death of Wolfe," by John Pet in 1775 in the popular medium of the time, oil on glass. There is also a typical ship "Barque Bridgeport," and the small sculpture are a winning group of bird carvings by Schimmel of Pennsylvania, the statue which is also represented by a pair of chalk dogs and a Pennsylvania Dutch Bride's box.
Testifying to the meticulous care with which young ladies of 1835 inscribed family history in memorial traces in delicate satin tree and flower patterns. Included also are pottery jugs from New Hampshire, quaint tin cookie molds, a fine tin weathervane of Columbia and penmanship drawings of a lion and deer.
Gathered together here, these treasured fragments of another age are well worth a look and offer a nostalgic excursion into the past.
The Parnassus Square Gallery is open daily from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

In the same group is the utterly delightful portrait of Jedediah Young's four young children, all rigidly viewing the world with wide startled gaze, shared even by their little dog.
Among the smaller paintings, reflecting the preoccupations of the painters of 1820, are two New York scenes, "The Narrows," and "The Hudson," and "The Death of Wolfe," by John Pet in 1775 in the popular medium of the time, oil on glass. There is also a typical ship "Barque Bridgeport," and the small sculpture are a winning group of bird carvings by Schimmel of Pennsylvania, the statue which is also represented by a pair of chalk dogs and a Pennsylvania Dutch Bride's box.
Testifying to the meticulous care with which young ladies of 1835 inscribed family history in memorial traces in delicate satin tree and flower patterns. Included also are pottery jugs from New Hampshire, quaint tin cookie molds, a fine tin weathervane of Columbia and penmanship drawings of a lion and deer.
Gathered together here, these treasured fragments of another age are well worth a look and offer a nostalgic excursion into the past.

Primitive Painting In Parnassus Show
Woodstock, July 28—An unusual exhibition of early American primitive paintings and sculpture from the collection of Thomas D. and Constance R. Williams of Litchfield, Mass., is now on view at the Parnassus Square Gallery, and will continue through Saturday, August 4. Bidding for the instant attention of both collectors and other visitors to the gallery are the six large wooden figures which once rode the early Barnum and Bailey circus wagons. Worn with age and no doubt many hundreds of miles of travel, the two giant monkeys are enchanting reminders of the old circus days, as well as the imposing Turk and Indian maiden, all of the flamboyant period from 1880 to 1903.
Sitting stiffly remote from today's upheavals, in their starched laces and dark heavy fabrics are the subjects of the several pairs of family portraits—Judge and Mrs. Ebenezer Foster of Brewster, N. Y., painted about 1839, and Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Salisbury Field, of Amherst, Mass., painted by Erastus. In the same group is the utterly delightful portrait of Jedediah Young's four young children, all rigidly viewing the world with wide startled gaze, shared even by their little dog.
